APPENDICES 1

REPORT of John Skelton, Esq., C.B., LL.D., formerly Chairman of the Board of Supervision, and now Vice-President of the Local Government Board (Scotland), to the Right Hon. Sir George O. Trevelyan, Baronet, M.P., Secretary for Scotland, on Local Taxation, with especial reference to the proportion of Local Burdens borne by Urban and Rural Ratepayers, and different classes of Real Property in Scotland.

Local Government Board, Edinburgh,
31*st December* 1894.

Sir,

1. In accordance with your wishes, I have made inquiry into the progressive increase of local taxation in Scotland, with especial reference to the proportion of local burdens borne by the different classes of real property. I propose, in discussing the subject, to follow as far as possible the main lines of inquiry, historical and geographical, on which the interesting and instructive reports by Mr Goschen and Mr Fowler as to the increase and incidence of local taxation in England proceeded.

The English statistics for the first half of the century are tolerably ample; and it is in consequence possible to institute comparisons between the local taxation of the earlier and later periods that may be regarded as substantially accurate. The Scottish statistics for the earlier period are on the contrary extremely meagre, and few returns are now available which supply a sufficient basis for comparison. It is to be observed, moreover, that during the past 50 years the whole system of local taxation in Scotland has been revolutionised. Most of the old assessments on land were levied upon what is known as the valued rent,— in effect a rental fixed in the seventeenth century, and which had long ceased to represent the actual rental; and it was not until 1854, when the Valuation Act was passed, that a uniform mode of ascertaining the annual value of lands and heritages was introduced. The Poor Law Act of 1845 was called an "Amending" Act; it was substantially the introduction of an entirely novel system. Any attempt to contrast the total amount expended on the relief of the poor in any year prior to 1845, with the total amount expended in any subsequent year, would serve no good end, and would indeed only tend to mislead. No approximate estimate of the burden imposed, either on real property, or on the "means and substance" of the community at large, can now be made. Outside the principal centres of population, the old Scottish poor law system may best be described as a regulated and legalised scheme of begging, supplemented by voluntary assessments and the charities of the church. In the northern and western counties, constituting the Highland district, the allowances awarded to the poor were illusory,— so small, the Commissioners appointed to inquire into the subject reported, as to be of no real assistance in providing for their support.

In these districts the allowance was given, indeed, not in the light of relief, but as "an acknowledgment of poverty," so that the recipient could not be prosecuted as a "sturdy beggar." In many rural parishes throughout the country the smallest amount of relief was refused; but the poor received a badge, and were licensed to beg within the limits of the parish, in conformity with the Act of 1672. Even without receiving such badges, the Commissioners found that in many of the burghs and smaller towns the paupers were allowed to beg on one or more days of the week,—as in Inveraray, Dingwall, Thurso, Perth, Kirkcaldy, and Peterhead. In Shetland, again, the poor were relieved by being "quartered" in rotation upon (in other words lodged and fed by) the inhabitants of each district. In these circumstances it is obvious that even if fairly complete returns could now be obtained, any comparison between the amount expended on the relief of the poor before and since the passing of the Act would be of comparatively little value.

The inquiry must, consequently, from the nature of the case, be limited to a comparatively recent period. Statistics of any kind, or at least of any value, are not available for the earlier years of the century; and the amount of local taxation then levied was inconsiderable. The year when the Poor Law Act may be said to have come fully into operation—1848—may be taken as a convenient starting point; and a comparison of the amount of local taxation levied in 1848, with the amounts levied in three representative later years,—1867, 1881, and 1893,—will, it is thought, be sufficient for any practical purpose.

Even for such a limited comparison the materials unfortunately are not complete. The old Statute Labour Road Trusts, for instance, having been wound up, the books and accounts, in many instances, are no longer accessible; and I have had to estimate the receipt and expenditure on the basis of the information appearing in the Report of the Royal Commission on Scottish Roads issued in 1859. The same remark applies to various other assessments,—an estimate only can be given; and of the total revenue and disbursements during the earlier years of the period under review, the estimate must be regarded as approximate only.

In 1881 the Local Taxation Returns (Scotland) Act was passed; and it is from that year that complete statistics of many branches of Local Taxation are available. I have endeavoured to supplement the imperfect material obtained from occasional Parliamentary Returns and other records, by examining, through an officer of this department—Mr John T. Maxwell—the books and accounts of assessing authorities for the years 1848 and 1867; and my thanks are due to these authorities for the courtesy and promptitude with which they responded to my request that I might be allowed to abstract the necessary information.

2. It will be convenient to explain at the outset the modes in which the various assessments are imposed, with reference more particularly to the classes of ratepayers from whom they are recovered. For this purpose the assessments may be classified under three heads.—(a) The assessments which are common to counties and burghs. (b) The county or rural assessments. (c) The burgh assessments.

(a) The general assessments, which are levied universally and uniformly, include Poor Rate and School Rate, and are, as a rule, imposed by the Parochial Boards and collected by their officers. The total assessment is equally divided, one-half being paid by the owners, one-half by the tenants and occupiers in each parish. The gross rental of the lands and heritages within the parish is taken from the Valuation Roll; but it is on the "Annual Value" or net rental (i.e., after the statutory deductions have been made) that the assessment is levied.

(b) The county or rural assessments. These include the following rates :—

County General, Police, Contagious Diseases (Animals), Sheriff Court Houses, Registration of Voters, Militia, Lunatic Asylums, Valuation, General Purposes, Roads, Public Health.

They are levied on the gross rental, and fall chiefly upon owners; but the assessments under the Roads and Bridges Act* of 1878, the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act; and for General Purposes under the Local Government Act, 1889, are levied one-half upon owners and one-half upon occupiers.

There is one exception to the general rule of levying county rates on the gross rental; the assessment under the Public Health Act is imposed and levied in like manner as the assessment under the Poor Law Act—i.e., on net rental, one-half on the owners, and one-half on the occupiers within each district. The Public Health Assessment extends over the district of the Local Authority only, not over the whole county. Where a special district has been formed the assessment is confined to the area of the special district. Where the Public Health Act of 1891 has been adopted there is a domestic rate and a public rate; the domestic being limited to the persons who are, or may be, supplied with water, the public including all ratepayers within the district.

Whatever expenditure is incurred by the formation of works in special districts within the county, or under the Act of 1891, falls, of course, to be added to the total expenditure in the county; but when calculating the rate per £ for the county it is not quite clear on what principle it should be dealt with. Although it is expenditure for which only a limited number of ratepayers are liable, it does not appear to be practicable to deal with it otherwise than as a portion of the general county expenditure, in which, consequently, throughout the Tables in this Report, it has been included for all purposes. The same principle has been applied to the road expenditure in counties, where the rates are levied according to districts, and vary considerably in each.

(c) The burgh assessments fall chiefly on the occupiers, the proportion being about six on occupiers to one on owners.

The following are the assessments levied in burghs:—

Police (including Constabulary, Public Lighting, Cleaning, Paving, Sewerage, Water and Improvement), Public Health, Roads and Bridges, Burial Grounds, Public Libraries, Improvement of Dwellings, Registration of Births, &c., Registration of Voters and Election of Councillors, Valuation of Lands and Heritages, Lunacy, Contagious Diseases (Animals), Militia, Sheriff Court Houses, Gas Supply and Measures, Weights and Measures, Bell and Petty Customs, Public Parks, and under Special (or Local) Acts for Water Supply, Drainage, &c.

3. Before proceeding to inquire into the proportion of local burdens borne by the different classes of real property, and more particularly into the comparative increase (as between urban and rural districts) that has taken place, a few preliminary observations may be of service. It is impossible indeed to arrive at just conclusions upon a question which has been the occasion of prolonged controversy, unless the lines on which the argument is to be conducted are defined with substantial precision. The determination of the question whether urban ratepayers are more heavily burdened than rural ratepayers, and whether the increase has been comparatively more rapid in towns than in rural districts, involves various considerations which are frequently overlooked.

* Prior to 1889, assessment under the Roads and Bridges Act for "Maintenance" was levied one-half on owners and one-half on occupiers, whereas assessment for Construction and for Road Debt was levied wholly on owners. The Local Government Act of 1889 provides that assessment for Road Debt "shall, until the debt is wholly repaid, be payable by owners only" . . . and "shall be included in the owner's Consolidated Rate"; and "that the cost of Construction [of Roads] shall be provided for in the same manner as the cost of Maintenance"—one-half by owners and one-half by occupiers.

(a) Many new burghs have been erected since the passing of the Police Acts of 1857 and 1862; and in view of the facilities afforded by the Burgh Act of 1892, it is probable that the progress in this direction will in future be as rapid. Any comparison, therefore, between county and burgh valuation and assessment at different dates, which fails to allow for the extension of the burgh area, will be apt to mislead. It is not generally known that between 1848 and 1892, no fewer than 96 populous places, with an assessable rental (according to the 1892 returns) of £1,816,723, were formed into burghs. In 1848 there were 100 burghs; in 1892,—196. In 1855, when the first Valuation Roll was completed, the county rental was £8,411,469,* and the burgh, £3,598,917;* in 1893 the county rental was £13,298,979, the burgh, £13,078,015 (but see footnotes to pages xix and xxxii).

Other causes of course have contributed to bring about the change in comparative values in recent years. While the annual value of house property in burghs has risen, the annual value of lands and heritages in rural districts (owing mainly, if not exclusively, to the depression in agriculture) has fallen. Moreover, as the rural populations drift into the towns, competition increases and rents rise. It is notorious that a single apartment in a squalid and ruinous urban tenement may cost as much as a labourer's cottage and garden in the country.

(b) In any attempt to arrive at a fair estimate of the burdens affecting real property, the distinction between remunerative and unremunerative taxation should not be lost sight of. The line between the remunerative and the unremunerative can only be drawn roughly; but the characteristic features of each are lucidly stated in Mr Goschen's Report. The increase in the Poor Rate, he remarks, must be regarded as a lamentable increase of burden, it being an increase from which the ratepayers themselves derive no benefit. On the other hand, most of the urban assessments are truly of the nature of payments for benefits received by the ratepayer, e.g., drainage, water supply, paving, and lighting. "A great portion of the outlay on these purposes must be regarded as remunerative in many senses, and as being not so much a burden as an investment" (page iv). If this distinction be sound, it is necessary, in forming an estimate of the burdens on urban and rural ratepayers respectively, to make at least some allowance for expenditure which is "not so much a burden as an investment"; and it will be found that much the larger proportion of the remunerative expenditure is incurred within burghs.

(c) The pressure of a burden varies according to the ability to bear it. The vast increase in the national wealth during the past 50 years is due chiefly, if not exclusively, to the remarkable development of our industrial resources—our commerce and manufactures; and it is consequently the ratepayers in the populous districts, which are now mainly urban, who have most largely benefited. The ability of the rural ratepayer remains practically unchanged (any change of late being for the worse); whereas the urban ratepayer is both absolutely and relatively a richer man, and better able to contribute to local as well as to imperial taxation. The experiment, however, of levying local taxation on income has been tried in Scotland without success. Under the Poor Law Act of 1845 the option of assessing on income or on rental was vested in the Parochial Boards. But local inquiry into the income of the ratepayers is apt to become inquisitorial and obnoxious; and assessment on "means and substance" became unpopular, and was finally abolished by the Baxter Act of 1861; though, in the case of the parishes where it existed at the date of the passing of the Act, classification as among occupiers was made compulsory,—classification being a rough method of adjusting the assessment to the "taxable capacity" of the ratepayer.

* House of Commons Return, No. 42 of 1874.

(d) It has been sometimes objected that a comparison of the burdens on land, based solely on the rate per £ of rental at different periods, must be more or less fallacious. While land used for agricultural purposes may not have increased in extent during the past 50 years, an enormous capital outlay has been incurred on improvements; and it is argued that if interest, even at a low rate, on such capital expenditure be deducted from the income presently derived from farm rents, &c., the balance (being the true rent to be compared with that of 50 years ago) will be found to be less than the then rental. The conclusion that, from this point of view, the local taxation on land is much heavier than it was 50 years ago, is, it may be, to a certain extent just; but it must not be forgotten that the same reasoning applies, partially at least, to house property,—though it is no doubt true that the main increase in the annual value of house property is due rather to the erection of new buildings than to capital expenditure on the old. It is also true that large annual reductions on the rental of land held on lease (varying from 10 to 20 or 30 per cent.) have, during the period of agricultural depression, been made to their tenants by landowners throughout Scotland; and that these reductions, during the currency of existing leases, do not appear in the Valuation Roll. Repayments of property and income-tax in respect of these reductions are made, however, by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, and it would have been interesting to ascertain their total amount. The fall on land rental during the past thirteen years, as shown in the Valuation Roll, amounts to about one-and-a-half million pounds; but it would appear that these figures, large as they are, do not represent the total decrease in the amount of rent paid by tenants of land. It may be proper that such considerations should not be entirely disregarded; but it is clear that, in framing a report on Local Taxation, the official record of valuation must, for all classes of property, be accepted as the basis of comparison. Yet even the official record is open to this observation:—What purports to be the Assessable County Valuation cannot be taken as representing the rural or agricultural rental, in respect that it includes the value of certain burghs which, for certain purposes, are assessed in the county. The value of the landward area in counties can only be indirectly arrived at, viz.—by deducting the burghal valuation from the total valuation; and it will be seen from a subsequent part of this Report that about £2,000,000 of burghal rental is included in the County Valuation, which should stand consequently at £11,000,000 and not at £13,000,000. So that, of the total amount of assessment imposed by the county, a proportion is burghal. But as the rate per £ of County assessment levied in these Burghs is relatively smaller than the rate levied in the Rural districts, the average rate per £ in areas exclusively rural is slightly higher than appears in this Report.

With these preliminary observations I proceed to deal with the figures which are given at length in the Tables of the Appendices. These Appendices, which have been very carefully prepared, contain the material on which the Notes I am now making are based; and indeed this Report may be regarded as little more than a rapid survey or review of the figures which will be found in the Statistical Tables.

1. PRESENT POSITION OF LOCAL TAXATION IN SCOTLAND.

(a) Revenue.

4. The revenue of the various Local Authorities for the year 1892-3, according to the Returns made under the Local Taxation Returns (Scotland) Act (duplicate entries in transactions between local bodies being as far as possible deducted), amounted to, in round numbers £7,550,000, and, if receipts from borrowed money be added, to about £9,800,000.

Since the Returns were compiled it has been found that some authorities have been in the habit of furnishing information concerning assessing departments only, and that considerable sums, relating to gas undertakings, and the common good of burghs, &c., have been omitted, on the ground that no local rates have been levied in connection with them. Taking the low estimate of £200,000 as covering such omissions, the Aggregate Revenue of Local Bodies in Scotland during 1892-3 may be broadly stated at £10,000,000.

Of this sum there was derived from

Rates,	£3,780,000
Tolls, dues, fees, &c.,	868,000
Imperial Subventions,	1,357,000
Loans,	2,257,000
Miscellaneous Sources, as shown in Returns,	1,546,000
Other Receipts not accounted for (say),	192,000
Total,	£10,000,000

Assessments.

5. It appears that the direct assessment levied upon rental was £3,780,000, and that £868,000 was obtained from Local Taxation indirectly levied,—i.e., tolls, dues, fees, &c.

In addition to, and along with, these sources of revenue there should be taken into account a scource of local revenue which of recent years has assumed large proportions. I refer to contributions out of the Local Taxation Account, and Treasury payments to Local Authorities from Parliamentary Votes, which, in this Report, are included under the general designation of "Imperial Subventions." This item in 1892-3 amounted to over £1,350,000, and represents the extent to which local burdens are met out of Imperial funds, or, in other words, the amount by which local taxation is relieved by Imperial taxation.

The total amount of "assessment" (in its widest sense), as applied to meet local expenditure, was thus somewhat more than £6,000,000, of which there was derived from

Direct Local Assessment,	£3,780,000
Indirect Local Assessment,	868,000
Imperial Assessment,	1,357,000
	£6,005,000

Direct Local Assessment.

6. Taking the broad divisions of Local Authorities as Urban, Rural and Parochial, it appears that of the rates for 1892–3 there were collected by

Urban Authorities, . . .	£1,722,000
Rural Authorities, . . .	629,000
Parochial Authorities, . . .	1,429,000

The whole of the urban rates are levied and collected by the Burgh Authorities.

Of the rural rates the County Councils collected £619,000; and the District Fishery Boards, the rates for which fell upon a very limited area, £10,000.

The whole of the Parochial Rates were collected by the Parochial Authorities (the Parochial Boards and the Heritors), and were distributed as follows :—

For Poor Law and other Parochial purposes, .	£779,000
For School Board purposes, ...	615,000
For purposes for which Heritors are liable, .	35,000

Indirect Local Assessment.

7. The great bulk of the indirect local taxes collected in 1892–3 was obtained from harbour dues and duties, which amounted to £789,000. School fees in Board Schools produced £36,000, and penalties, fees, &c., amounted in Burghs to £37,000, in Counties to £6,000.

Imperial Taxation applied locally.

8. Of the Imperial Subventions the amount paid to School Boards in the year in question was £836,000

Parochial Boards received in respect of the cost of Pauper Lunatics, Medical Relief to the Poor, &c.,	138,000*
Burgh Authorities for cost of Pay and Clothing of Police, Roads, Relief of Rates, &c., . .	206,000
and County Authorities for similar purposes, .	177,000

Miscellaneous Sources of Revenue.

9. The Miscellaneous Revenue, being the revenue of gas undertakings, common good, sale of property, water rents, &c., and amounting to, say, £1,738,000, was almost exclusively burghal.

Percentage of Different Sources of Local Revenue.

Excluding monies received in respect of loans, the local revenue was raised in the following proportion :—

Direct Local Assessment, . . .	48·8 per cent.
Indirect Local Assessment, . . .	11·2 ,,
Imperial Assessment, ...	17·5 ,,
Other Sources, ...	22·5 ,,
	100·0

* The Grant of £50,000 to Parochial Boards in aid of Local Rates (in terms of the Education and Local Taxation Account (Scotland) Act, 1892) for the year 1892–3 was not distributed till the following year. £185,500 is the amount annually paid to Parochial Boards from the Local Taxation Account.

(b) Expenditure.

10. The aggregate local expenditure as shown in the Returns for 1892–3 was £9,653,000. Other local expenditure for miscellaneous purposes, not included in Returns, would, it is thought, bring the amount up to not less than £9,850,000.

Of this sum there was spent on

Relief of the Poor,	£938,000
Education,	1,561,000
Watching (Constabulary),	454,000
Lighting, Cleaning, Paving,—in Burghs,	446,000
Sanitary Measures (Drainage, Water Supply, Hospitals), &c.,	568,000
Roads,	640,000
Harbours,	721,000
Ecclesiastical purposes (by Heritors),	42,000
Repayment of debt,	1,533,000
Interest,	1,028,000
Miscellaneous, accounted for in Returns,	1,722,000
Miscellaneous, not accounted for (say),	197,000
Total,	£9,850,000

From the manner in which the Returns were framed, prior to the present year (1894), the amount of capital expenditure (i.e., expenditure defrayed out of loans or out of accumulated funds), included above cannot be precisely stated. Assuming, however, that the charges for capital expenditure would about equal the amount raised from loans during the year, it may be roughly stated at £2,250,000, which would make the ordinary current expenditure £7,600,000, as against a current revenue of £7,750,000.*

2. RETROSPECTIVE.

(a) Amount of Local Rates levied at different periods since 1848.

11. The receipts from rates, so far as can be ascertained from the materials which are available, were, broadly speaking,

In 1848,	£903,000
1867,	1,793,000
1881,	2,956,000
1885,	3,343,000
1889,	3,500,000
1893,	3,780,000†

The increase in the local rates as between 1848 and 1893 thus amounts to £2,877,000. That is to say, that £4 is now raised for every £1 raised in 1848.

* Further details of Revenue and Expenditure will be found in Table 1 of Appendix B.

† Estimate.

12. I have made a very careful examination of the rates raised by the Parochial Authorities (whose areas are partly urban and partly rural), and have found that of the assessments imposed by them in 1848 and 1893 the amounts falling upon urban and rural areas respectively, were approximately

	1848.	1893.
On Urban Areas	180,771	705,590
On Rural Areas	364,096	722,982

Adding these amounts to the specified urban and rural rates in these years it is found that the total rates levied on urban and rural districts respectively were 1848.	1893.	Increase.

Urban Areas	361,067	2,427,517	2,066,450
Rural Areas	541,742	1,352,008	810,266

It must, however, be kept in mind that certain burghs are rated by the counties for constabulary and other purposes, and that in consequence the amount of rates falling upon urban areas in 1893 was somewhat greater, and the amount on rural areas somewhat less, than is here stated. The increased amounts of rates raised in Burghs is due partly to the higher rates per £ imposed, and partly to the extension of Burgh area (vide page 6, paragragh (a)).

Remunerative and Non-Remunerative Rates in 1848 and 1893.

13. In making a comparison of the amount of local rates falling upon urban and rural districts respectively, it is of importance, as I have already said, that remunerative should, as far as possible, be distinguished from non-remunerative taxation,—many of the new rates being of the nature of payment for benefits received, and not so much a burden as an investment, e.g., lighting of streets, cleansing, paving, &c.

In distinguishing between non-remunerative and remunerative taxation I have followed the principle adopted in the English Local Taxation Returns some years ago, and have included, in the first class, sums levied for the maintenance of a police force (i.e., the protection of life and property, and preservation of internal peace and order), and for the relief of the poor. All other rates have been placed in the second class.

The following Tables show the total amount of Remunerative and Non-Remunerative Rates raised in 1848 and 1893:—

I. Non-Remunerative Rates.

Total	126,923	1,849,555	204,261	869,274

It thus appears that the great increase of taxation has been in the rates more or less remunerative in character. While the non-remunerative rates increased from £572,000 in 1848 to £1,061,000 in 1893, the remunerative rates increased from £331,000 to £2,719,000. This increase more especially affects the burgh rating; for, whereas the non-remunerative rates in burghs increased from £234,000 to £578,000 or 147 per cent., the remunerative rates increased from £127,000 to £1,850,000, being an increase of 1,357 per cent. or 9 times the rate of increase of the non-remunerative rates.

As regards the counties, the non-remunerative rates increased during the same period from £337,000 to £483,000; and the remunerative rates from £204,000 to £869,000.

Old and New Rates.

14. It is also of importance to distinguish between what may be called the old rates or the rates levied prior to 1848, and the new rates,—that is to say, the rates which have been imposed by later legislation.

Old Rates.

The main rates levied by Burgh Authorities in 1848 were for police and improvement purposes, sanitation and roads; and large additional powers for these purposes have been conferred upon Burgh Authorities by the Police and Improvement Acts of 1857, 1862, and 1892. In counties, road rates and police and prison rates were the chief assessments imposed in 1848. In parishes (the parish includes the burghal as well as the landward area), poor rates and heritors rates for school and church purposes were levied. A statement of the origin and progress of each of these old rates is given in a subsequent part of the Report.

New Rates.

15. Of the new rates, the more important levied in burghs and counties between 1848 and 1867 were the valuation, burial grounds, lunacy, registration, Sheriff Court houses, and militia rates; and in parishes the valuation, registration and burial grounds rates.

Between 1867 and 1881 new rates were imposed in counties under the Public Health Act, Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, Food and Drugs Act, Weights and Measures Act, Prisons Act and Roads and Bridges Act. In burghs, during the same period, new rates were levied under the Public Health, Public Libraries, Public Parks, Artisans' and Labourers' Dwellings, Contagious Diseases (Animals), Weights and Measures, and Bell and Petty Customs Acts. In parishes, what is practically a new rate was created by the Education Act of 1872. In recent years an increase of county rating has followed the passing of the Local Government Act of 1889.

* Estimate.

Proportion of Old and New Rates.

16. The amounts received in 1893 in respect of the new rates may be broadly stated as

In Burghs	£907,000
Counties (Estimate) . . .	130,000
Parishes including Burghs . . .	644,000

Of the new rates in burghs, the heaviest are the water rates, levied under special Acts, and the public health rate, amounting to £338,551 and £158,344, respectively; and in parishes, the school rate, amounting to £615,265.

Deducting the new rates stated above from the total rates we find that the old rates raised in 1893 amounted to

In Burghs, ...	£815,000
Counties, ...	499,000
Parishes, ...	785,000
Total, . .	£2,099,000

These results enable us to form an approximate estimate of the increase of old rates and the amount of new rates levied in 1893 as compared with 1848 :—

Authorities.	"Old Rates."		Increase in "Old Rates" in 1893.	"New Rates" levied in 1893.
	1848.	1893.
	£	£	£	£
Urban	180,000	815,000	635,000	907,000
Rural	178,000	499,000	321,000	130,000
Parochial	545,000	785,000	240,000	644,000

It thus appears that, while as regards Urban and Parochial Authorities, the largest increase has been in the new rates; on the other hand, as regards Rural Authorities the increase has been more largely in the old.

The increase in the old rates for the whole country was . .	£1,196,000
The new rates amounted to	1,681,000
The total increase of rates in 1893 over 1848 being thus .	£2,877,000

(b) Rate per £ of Local Rates raised at Different Periods.

17. In calculating, for purposes of comparison, the rates per £ of local taxes in various years, the same process has been followed as that adopted by Mr Goschen and Mr Fowler in the English Reports, viz.:—the amount of the rates raised in each area has been divided by the valuation of the area. But whereas in the English Reports the net rental is taken, in this Report the gross is taken. As the deductions allowed vary much in amount in different areas, the method I have adopted appears to be the only one by which a proper comparison, as between different areas, can be arrived at. It should be kept in view, however, that the rate per £ actually levied will be somewhat in excess of the rate appearing in this Report,—so that the result is only approximately correct. It must also be observed that while in 1848 county rates were levied on the old valued rent, my calculations throughout have been based on real rent. Statute Labour Conversion Assessment,* though not levied on rent, was a direct tax, and is included as part of the local rates.

* Vide note to page xxxi.

The average rate per £ of assessment on the gross rental for the whole of Scotland at different periods was as follows :—

Year.	Rate. s.	d.
1848	1	9·2
1867	2	2·5
1881	2	7·8
1882	2	8·8

1884	2	10·1

1889	3	0·4
1890	3	0·3
1891	3	0·7
1892	3	0·8
1893	3	1·5

The average rate per £ for Urban, Rural and Parochial Authorities respectively was as follows :—

1848	1	2·4	0	5·9	1	0·8
1867	2	0·7	0	6·9	1	1·5

1893	2	7·6	0	11·4	1	2·2

Relative Increase of Rates in the £ in Urban and Rural Districts.

18. The total amount of all assessments (including proportion of assessments of Parochial Authorities), levied in urban and rural areas, is approximately stated in paragraph 12. These amounts represent a rate per £ of rental equal to

In Urban Areas :—

1893	3	8·5

In Rural Areas :—

	s.	d.

* The urban rates do not represent the total burden on burgh ratepayers. A number of the smaller burghs are rated in the rural area for constabulary, roads, and general county purposes. The rural rates also are slightly understated. The assessable rural valuation, upon which the calculations are based, includes the valuation of certain burghs rated for certain rural purposes (vide footnotes to pp. xxx and xxxii).

Rates in the £ of Remunerative and Non-Remunerative Taxation.

19. It is further shown in paragraph No. 13, that the receipts from remunerative taxation in urban areas increased at a much more rapid rate than those from non-remunerative taxation, and that in rural areas, receipts from the former class also increased more rapidly than in the latter, but in a less ratio than in the case of burghs.

Turning now to the rates per £ imposed in respect of these two classes of taxation, I find that in both urban and rural areas while the non-remunerative rate has diminished the remunerative rate has largely increased.

The average rate per £ of non-remunerative taxation in urban areas was

	s.	d.
In 1848	1	6·7
1893	0	10·6
being a decrease of	0	8·1

and in rural areas it was

	s.	d.
In 1848	0	11·2
1893	0	8·7
being a decrease of	0	2·5

On the other hand, the average rate per £ of remunerative taxation in urban areas was

	s.	d.
In 1848	0	10·2
1893	2	9·9
being an increase of	1	11·7

In rural areas the remunerative rates amounted to

	s.	d.
In 1848	0	6·8
1893	1	3·7
being an increase of	0	8·9

of which a large proportion is due to the upkeep of roads now forming a direct charge against rental.

Rate per £ of Old and New Rates in 1893.

20. Paragraph 16 shows the amounts raised from each of these classes in 1848 and 1893.

The rate per £ of old rates was

	s.	d.
In 1848	1	9·2
1893	1	8·8
being a decrease in 1893 of	0	0·4

The rate per £ of new rates was

	s.	d.
In 1848	Nil.
1893	1	4·7

The result is that, while the rate per £ levied for purposes, in respect of which taxation was imposed in 1848, has practically remained stationary, the rate per £ in respect of new assessments has increased by 1s. $4\frac{3}{4}$d.—these new assessments being mainly "remunerative."

(c) Indirect Taxation.

21. The increase in the amount of indirect taxation for local purposes, during the period referred to in the Report, is shown in the following Table :—

Authorities.	1848.	1867.	1881.	1893.
	£	£	£	£
Burgh	19,546	33,650	26,118	36,454
Harbour	176,822	333,382	594,459	789,374

Total	475,276	599,763	928,344	868,192

The increase of indirect taxation is almost entirely due to the largely increased amount received from harbour dues.

The principal source of indirect taxation in 1848 was turnpike tolls. Tolls were, however, gradually abolished under Local County Roads Acts, and finally, when effect was given to the Roads and Bridges Act of 1878, toll dues ceased to be exacted in any part of the country.

After the passing of the Education Act of 1872, school fees payable to School Boards rapidly and steadily increased, till in 1888–9, they reached £272,000. Imperial Subventions in relief of fees having been given, the amount received from fees is now greatly reduced, being only £36,103 in 1892–3.

(d) Increase in Local Expenditure.

22. The following Table shows the manner in which Local Revenue in Scotland has been disbursed in the years 1848, 1867, 1881, and 1893, and the enormous increase in the expenditure in 1893, as compared with 1848, particularly on education, repayment of debt and interest, and sanitation.

The capital or loan expenditure in each year has been estimated as being about equal to the amount of capital (or loan) revenue for the year.

* Estimate.

† In addition to this, the amount of expenditure not included in the Local Taxation Returns, is estimated at £197,000, making the expenditure not defrayed out of loans for that year £7,593,105, and the total expenditure for the year £9.850.105 (vide paragraph No. 10).

(e) Increase in Local Debt.

22*a*. The costly works undertaken of late years by Local Authorities have been mainly paid for by loans obtained either from Insurance Companies and other private lenders or from the Public Works Loan Commissioners. The loans obtained from the Public Works Loan Commissioners were repayable as a rule by equal annual instalments within forty years. Under the Local Government Act of 1889 the county loans are now repayable within thirty years, and the provisions of the Police Act of 1892 appear to place a somewhat similar limit on the period of repayment in burghs. The rate of interest charged by the Loan Commissioners (the rates varying according to the number of years within which the loan is repayable) is from 3½ to 4 per cent. During the past quarter of a century the increase of loans (on account of the growth of capital expenditure) has been unprecedentedly rapid, and the payment of the annual interest and instalments now constitutes a heavy charge upon the rates. The comparative increase in the amount of the debt, and of the annual charge cannot, from the returns, be shown with entire precision; but it may be stated generally that the outstanding loans amounted to—

In 1848	4,683,000
1867	8,108,000
1881	20,162,000
1893	28,296,000

The local indebtedness has thus increased by upwards of 23½ millions of pounds in forty-six years; and there does not appear to be any prospect of this rapid growth being checked.

The debts of the three classes of Authorities,—Urban, Rural, and Parochial —are shown in the following statement :—

* The debt shown here is less than the actual indebtedness—loans contracted on security of the "common good" of burghs, and not forming a charge upon the rates, not having been included in the Returns made by some burgh officials.

† The debt of Turnpike Trusts, although stated here as "Rural," was, to some extent, an "Urban" liability

These figures represent the total local debt; but a portion of it is not a charge on the rates. This is the case as regards the loans of Harbour and Port Authorities; and the loans for gas works, markets and other undertakings producing revenue are secured primarily on that revenue, and constitute a charge on the rates to the extent only of the excess of expenditure over revenue. The "common good" revenue also is often used to meet the charges for the debt of burghs. The loans to Harbour and Port Authorities amount to £9,339,395; and after allowing for this class of loans and for the other class estimated at £5,000,000, in as far as the revenue other than rates is insufficient to meet the payments of principal and interest, it may be estimated that about $13\frac{3}{4}$ millions of pounds sterling of the gross debt in 1893 is a direct charge upon the rates.

The debts of the Urban Authorities have increased since 1848 by nearly £21,000,000; of which the increase of harbour debt is £8,000,000, and of town debt £13,000,000.

From the urban debt of 1893, however, the debt on harbours and ports, amounting to £9,339,395, and the proportion of debt falling to be met, in the first instance, out of revenue other than rates, estimated at £5,000,000, require to be deducted to ascertain the debt which must be paid out of the rates. This would leave a balance of about £9,000,000 as the actual charge on the urban rates.

It would appear from the preceding Table that rural debt had decreased by more than a million pounds since 1848, but this is not an exact statement of fact. Under the Turnpike Trust Act of 1831, roads, or particular parts of roads, were constructed and maintained out of subscriptions or loans by landowners or others interested; the surplus revenue available, after the maintenance had been provided for, on any of these roads being assigned as security for the repayment of such subscriptions or loans with interest. The introduction of railways having to a great extent diverted traffic from the roads, the tolls in many cases became insufficient to meet the payment either of instalment or interest. As turnpikes were abolished, and the roads taken over by the counties, the debts were revalued, and, as a rule, greatly reduced in amount or entirely extinguished. The apparent diminution of rural debt is, therefore, less a reduction of debt than a writing down of liabilities which had long ceased to be recoverable by the creditors.

The debt of the Parochial Authorities is a new liability, and has been chiefly contracted for the erection of schools. It has since 1874 increased with great rapidity.

The debts in 1893, charged directly against the rates, and the valuations of the three classes of Authorities, are as follows:—

	Debt.	Valuation.
Urban Authorities	*9,000,000	13,078,000
Rural Authorities	733,000	†13,299,000
Parochial Authorities	4,072,000	24,180,000

3. GROWTH OF TAXATION.

23. In tracing the growth of taxation I deal in the first place with the more important of the old rates. They may be classified as follows:—I. Poor Rates; II. Heritors Rates for Education; III. Church and Burial Grounds Rates; IV. Road Rates; V. Prison and Police Rates; VI. Sanitary Rates.

* Estimate.

† The rural valuation (£13,299,000) includes upwards of £2,000,000 of urban valuation also included in the valuation of Urban Authorities. This amount of urban valuation therefore appears twice in the above Table. The parochial valuation (£24,180,000) represents the total valuation of Scotland.

I. Poor Rates.

24. I have said in an earlier part of the Report that no general and uniform system of relief of the poor was in existence before 1845. Up to that time the poor of all classes had been mainly maintained by church door collections, voluntary contributions, and private charity. It is true that compulsory assessments for the relief of the destitute and disabled (falling one-half upon owners, according to real or valued rent, and one-half upon occupiers, according to "means and substance"), had been authorised by Statute or by Privy Council Order from an early period; but prior to 1845 these assessments had been imposed and levied in a comparatively limited number of parishes.

The number of assessed parishes at different dates is shown in the following Table:—

Year.	Number of Assessed Parishes.	Gross Rental of Assessed Parishes.	Amount of Assessment.	Rate per £ of Assessment in Assessed Parishes.
		£	£	s. d.
1817	192	2,661,241	49,719	0 4½
1841	238	Not ascertained	128,258	...
1848	600	Do.	464,867	...
1856	716	10,767,766	588,066	1 1
1867	783	15,552,540	758,495	0 11¾
1874	811	18,368,079	793,969	0 10¼
1881	823	21,860,455	800,591	0 8¾
1892	839	23,719,998	753,744	0 7¾
1893	839	23,918,897	750,696	0 7½

It appears from this Table that within a few years of the passing of the Act of 1845 assessment had become general, and that the funds required for the maintenance and management of the poor had rapidly increased. It is satisfactory to note that there has been a continuous decline in the rate per £ since 1856. The reduction is due, however, not only to improved administration and the prosperity of the working classes, but to the assistance received from the State in the form of "Subventions."

The proportion of the cost of poor transferred in recent years from local to imperial taxation has been very considerable. Up to 1858 no grant in aid of poor law relief had been made. A grant of £10,000, towards the cost of poor law medical relief, was voted for the first time in that year, and in 1882 it was increased to £20,000—its present amount. In 1875, the first vote in aid of the cost of maintenance of pauper lunatics was taken, and in that year £59,483 was paid to Parochial Boards. The amount annually drawn from the parliamentary grant for the purpose rapidly increased, till in 1889 it had reached £91,334. In that year the grant was, under the Local Government (Scotland) Act, converted into a local taxation contribution and fixed at £90,500. Three years later the Education and Local Taxation Account (Scotland) Act provided that a further sum of £25,000 should be given in aid of pauper lunatics. It was also provided that £50,000 should be paid to Parochial Boards in "relief of rates generally." The sum now annually paid to Parochial Boards out of imperial funds (excluding Treasury payments in lieu of rates on Government property) amounts in all to £185,500.

Since 1848 the amounts expended on relief of the poor have been as follows:—

II. Education Rates.

25. Although in one form or other an educational system may be said to have existed in Scotland for at least 600 years, legal provision was not made for the erection and maintenance of a school in each parish until 1696. In that year the settling of Schools Act ordered "that the heritors in every parish should meet and provide a commodious house for a 'school,' fix an annual salary not under 100 merks or over 200 merks for the schoolmaster, and 'stent' themselves and lay on the said salary conform to every heritor's valued rent, allowing each heritor relief from his tenants of the half of his proportion for settling and maintaining of a school and payment of the schoolmaster's salary."

The Act of 1803 fixed a scale of salaries for schoolmasters, and made provision for settling the amount of school fees to be charged, and directed that in every parish where a commodious house for a school was not provided, a schoolhouse should be built. The burden of erecting and maintaining the schools and schoolhouses was placed upon the heritors.

The first public grant for education was made in 1832, when a vote of £20,000 was taken in aid of education in Great Britain.

Parish schools and other means of education having been found to be inadequate in the Highlands and Islands, an Act was passed in 1838 authorising the Treasury to provide for the endowment of additional schools out of sums granted for education in Scotland.

In 1861 the law relating to schools was again amended. A higher scale of salaries to schoolmasters was authorised, and power was given to the heritors to establish girls' schools, and to the minister and heritors to grant retiring allowances to schoolmasters.

The important Act of 1872 created a practically new rate.* Under it education was made compulsory. Generally speaking, the parish, or, in the case of royal and parliamentary burghs, the municipal or police area of the burgh is the area of administration, and the School Boards, to whom the old parish schools were made over, are the local authorities. Their powers are extensive, and their expenditure, in connection with the provision of school accommodation and management, is very great. Revenue is derived from imperial grants, school fees, and rates; and for the providing or enlargement of schoolhouses they are authorised to borrow on security of the school fund and the rates.

School Rates levied in different Years.

Until recent years the education rate was by no means a heavy burden. It is estimated that the assessment on heritors amounted

In 1848 to	£50,000
1867 „	75,000

while the actual amount raised by assessment

In 1874 was	£204,837

1893 .	835,925	„	8·3	„

These sums are exclusive of payments to denominational or other schools not under the School Boards.

The foregoing statistics will repay further consideration. The average school rate which in 1848 and 1867, is estimated at 1·2d. per £ of gross valuation, amounted to 2·6d. per £ in 1874 and rose steadily till it reached 6·1d. per £ in 1893. Between 1874 and 1893; a period of 20 years, the education rate had thus increased 134 per cent.

It is estimated that parish school fees averaged about 0·8d. per £ of valuation in 1848. In 1874, the fees collected in School Board Schools alone, amounted to 1d. per £ of the valuation of Scotland. They had increased, the progress being uniform on the whole, to 2·7d. per £ in 1887. In 1893, revenue from this source fell suddenly to 0·4d. per £, this immense diminution being the immediate result of the grants for relief of fees under the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, and the Education and Local Taxation Account (Scotland) Act, 1892.

The remarkable growth of state aid to education is also well shown. The average annual grant to the country, during the period from 1833 to 1855 in respect of schools of all classes, appears to have been in round numbers £9,000; in 1893, nearly £836,000 was paid to School Boards from imperial funds. A large additional amount was, in the latter year, paid to schools not under School Boards, and to training colleges.

III. Church and Burial Ground Rates.

(a) Church Rates.†

26. The burden of providing and maintaining the parish church and the manse and glebe has rested on the heritors or landowners, from an early period, and for this purpose they "stented" themselves according to the old valued rent of their estates. The provision of church accommodation for the people is still a burden on the heritors, and, though in ordinary circumstances the assessments for buildings and the repayment of debt, &c., are imposed on the real rent, it would appear from the Local Taxation Returns that even at the present time certain rates for upkeep or repair of churches in purely landward parishes are levied on the old valued rent as shown in the cess-books.

† "Teinds" have not been included in the figures throughout this Report (vide page xlvi).

While this rate fluctuates according to church requirements, its tendency is to decrease.

In 1881 it amounted to	. . .	£43,160
1885 „	. . .	40,920
1890 „	. . .	34,868
1892 „	. . .	29,625
1893 „	. . .	31,632

(b) Burial Ground Rates.

27. The old burial grounds were managed and maintained by the heritors who, among other matters, were bound to provide sufficient churchyard accommodation for the parishioners, and who, when necessary, assessed themselves for the purpose. The unsatisfactory state of churchyards drew public attention to the necessity of legislation; and the English Act of 1852 was followed three years later by a similar Act for Scotland. Under the 1855 Act, the Parochial Board or the Town Council is the Burial Authority according as the parish is held to be landward or burghal, and these authorities now chiefly provide for the interment of the dead.

The expenses of burial grounds under the Act of 1855 are met by interment fees and sale of lairs, any deficiency being paid out of assessment levied in the same manner as the poor rate.

In some parishes churchyards are still kept up by the heritors, who raise the funds required from an assessment laid on themselves.

The assessments levied for burial ground purposes in the years 1881 and 1893 were as follows:—

Town Councils	. . .	3,557

IV. Road Rates.

28. The old roads in Scotland may be divided into 4 classes:—

(a) Statute Labour Roads.
(b) Turnpike Roads.
(c) Military and Parliamentary Roads.
(d) Roads maintained under Private Acts.

(a) Statute Labour Roads.

The earliest Roads Act appears to be that of 1617, under which the Justices of the Peace were empowered to repair the public highways, and to punish those who refused to mend them. The system of direct labour was introduced by the Act of 1669; and all occupiers, in burghs and counties alike, were liable to be called upon for service. Where personal service was insufficient, a tax was levied on the heritors; the maximum rate being 10s. Scots in each pound of valued rent. If, after this "stent" or tax had been levied, there was still a deficiency, customs at bridges, causeways, and ferries were authorised to be collected.

This Statute was in force until the adoption of the Roads and Bridges Act of 1878. The increase of trade, however, had rendered direct service, which fell very heavily on the labouring classes, inconvenient and oppressive, and under Local Acts personal service was gradually commuted to an annual money payment. Commutation was rendered general by the "Conversion Money" Act of 1845, which gave the trustees the option of abolishing the system of direct labour, and levying a tax in lieu of it. In Bute and Shetland, however, the roads were maintained by direct labour until the Act of 1878 came into force.

* The amounts opposite "heritors" are the sums expended by them on churchyards,—burial ground assessments not being distinguished in the returns of ecclesiastical revenue and expenditure.

(b) Turnpike Roads.

It has already been stated that power to impose "customs" or "tolls" on the highways was first authorised by the Act of 1669. There are no statistics now available to show how far such power was exercised; but there is ample evidence that before the close of the 18th century the great increase of traffic and the development of the country generally, had involved the construction and maintenance of new and improved lines of transit, and many local Turnpike Acts were passed between 1713 and 1800. Tolls were established, and large borrowing powers on security of the tolls, or rather of the surplus revenue of tolls, after meeting the cost of maintenance of the roads, were given under these Acts.

In 1831 all turnpike roads were (with certain exceptions in the case of Highland roads, and the Glasgow and Carlisle road), made subject to the provision of the General Act of that year (1 & 2 Wil. IV. c. 43).

Between 1848 and 1878 several counties had adopted special Acts by which Statute labour and turnpikes were abolished, and an assessment on rent substituted. Under the Roads and Bridges Act of 1878 the turnpike system ceased to exist at 1st June 1883. In burghs, however, though turnpikes were abolished, the authorities were authorised to continue the mode of assessment then existing, if they saw fit.

The decline in the turnpike system is illustrated by the following statement:—

Year.	* Revenue from Tolls.	* Expenditure on Turnpike Roads exclusive of Instalments of Loans and Interest.
1849	237,695	198,714
1867	181,598	170,264
1881	101,813	112,058
1885	Nil.	Nil.

The indirect tax for the maintenance of roads (i.e., tolls) did not fall exclusively upon the rural ratepayer. The roads within the county were, of course, used to some extent by the ratepayers within burghs from whom consequently a proportion of the expenditure was recovered. In the counties where there were few burghs this proportion would be inconsiderable; whereas, in the counties where burghs were numerous, it would be larger. But in either case no estimate of the amount collected from urban and rural ratepayers respectively is possible.

The revenue from tolls was equal to a rate per £ on the total valuation of Scotland:—

	d.
In 1849 of	5·6
1867 „	2·7
1881 „	1·1
1885 „	Nil.

The probability, however, is that in the earlier years, before the railway system was developed, the greater proportion of the tolls would be paid by the rural ratepayers, and that the rates per £ upon the rural districts would be somewhat higher, and those upon urban districts somewhat lower, than is shown here.

(c) Military and Parliamentary Roads.

After the Rebellion of 1745 the Highlands generally were in a disturbed condition, and highway communication being limited and imperfect, were difficult of access. For the better control of that part of the kingdom about 250 miles of "military" roads were constructed by Government.

* Taken from Abstracts of Income and Expenditure of Turnpike Trusts in Scotland.

Parliamentary roads, extending to 94 miles, were constructed in 1803 and following years, the expense being defrayed—one-half by Parliament, and one-half by the counties themselves.

These roads were also confined to the Highlands, and were managed by special commissioners. They were subsidised under several Acts of Parliament, and, finally, an annual grant of £5000 was voted for their maintenance. This grant ceased in 1863, and the roads and all charges in connection with them were transferred to the counties in which they were situated.

(d) Roads maintained under Special Acts.

Turnpike tolls and statute labour assessment were abolished in 14 counties under Private County Roads Acts, passed prior to 1878,—the cost of road maintenance and management being defrayed out of a direct assessment, which, in the counties referred to, amounted in 1881 to £96,548. The Special Roads Acts were repealed by the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889,—all county roads being now managed in terms of the Roads and Bridges Act of 1878.

Increase of Direct Road Rates in Counties.

29. The progress of the road rates in counties (including statute labour assessment, which, as will be shown in a subsequent portion of the Report, was levied in a different manner from all other rates), will be seen from the following Table :—

Year.	Amount of Assessment.	Rate per £ of Valuation.*
1848	102,092†	0 3½
1867	167,026†	0 3½
1881	256,464	0 4½
1893	362,909	0 6½*

The increase is due mainly (if not entirely) to the decline in the system of turnpike roads, alluded to in the previous page.

Increase of Road Rates in Burghs.

30. In burghs the streets are maintained out of assessment levied in terms of the Roads and Bridges Act of 1878, or Local Acts, or from other burgh funds. It is difficult, for various reasons, to show the precise amounts expended in burghs on the upkeep of roads and streets ; but, so far as can be ascertained, such expenditure appears to have been

In 1848	£26,143
1867	57,582
1885	148,953‡
1893	219,457‡

This expenditure was incurred solely in the construction, maintenance, and management of roads, and is exclusive of large annual sums to meet instalments of debt and interest. It is equivalent to a rate per £ on burgh rental of

	d.
In 1848	2
1867	2½
1885	3
1893	4

The expenditure on turnpike trusts (incurred in the years 1848 and 1867) is not included in these amounts.

* The rural valuation taken as the basis here and elsewhere throughout this report is the rental on which the county general assessment is levied. Calculated upon the basis of county road valuation (£12,209,490), which is less than the valuation for county general assessment, the average road rate in 1893 would be 7d. per £, and in 1867 and 1881 the rate would also be a fraction higher.

† Partly estimated.

‡ The expenditure for 1885 and 1893 is no doubt considerably understated. The cost of "Paving" in Burghs has in many cases been included in the Local Taxation Returns under the general heading "Lighting, Cleaning, Paving, &c.", and cannot be distinguished.

Grant in aid of Roads.

31. In 1882, a grant in aid of disturnpiked roads was given, £250,000 being voted to meet payments to the extent of one-fourth of the cost of maintenance of roads, disturnpiked since 1850, in England, Wales and Scotland. The amount required, however, was only £187,652, of which £20,487 went to Scotch Authorities. Of that sum there was paid to County Authorities, £16,874, and Burgh Authorities, £3,613.

In 1884–5 a separate grant of £35,000 was given to Scotland. This grant ceased in 1889-90, an annual contribution of £35,000 from the Local Taxation (Scotland) Account being paid in lieu of it.

V. Police or Constabulary Rates.

Prisons and Police (Rogue Money).

32. In early times the jurisdiction of the Scottish barons under the feudal system was very extensive, and many of the prison houses were maintained privately by them. General prisons or "castels" also were kept up at the expense of the Crown. Under the Acts of 1487 and 1528, persons who were arrested were lodged in the "Kingis Castel," or, where such did not exist, were committed to the custody of the sheriff of the county, and the charges defrayed out of the Crown revenues.

The important Scottish Act of 1579 was more than a simple Poor Law enactment. It was a combined Poor Law Act and Police Act; for, in addition to providing for the deserving poor, it authorised the apprehension and commitment to the "common prison" of "vagabonds" and "strang and idle beggars."

At the close of the 16th century Parliament placed the burden of erecting and upholding the prisons of the whole country on the burghs, to be met out of the common good or otherwise, at their expense. This burden was apparently considered an equivalent for the privileges enjoyed by the burgesses, and was borne by them for about two centuries and a half. But in many districts the Scottish nobility still maintained what may be termed private prisons in their own territories.

The first provision, rendering counties liable for a portion of the expense in criminal proceedings, is contained in the "Rogue Money" Act of 1724, which authorised an assessment for expenses in connection with the apprehension, maintenance and prosecution of criminals. This Act, however, provides only for the expenses before conviction, and makes no provision for the cost of maintenance after trial, and as a result, in many counties the maintenance of convicts fell, after sentence, entirely on the burghs. On the abolition of heritable jurisdictions in the reign of George II., the barons ceased to keep up prisons of their own, and the additional cost involved had accordingly to be borne by the burghs. But in many burghs the common good and other revenues were insufficient to meet the demands made upon them. Consequently the prisons fell into decay and became defective in point of accommodation and security.

A radical change was required, and a new system, the foundation of the present one, was instituted in 1839. In that year an Act to improve prisons and prison discipline was passed, under which a General Board and Local County Boards were constituted, and a regular police force was established for the first time. A general prison at Perth was also erected, partly out of imperial funds, and partly from assessment; the assessment being apportioned between counties and burghs according to population, and levied in landward parts of counties on owners, according to either real rental or old valued rent, as might be determined by the County Authorities.

The Act of 1857 brought the police administration under Government control, and provided a "grant-in-aid." The basis of assessment, in every case, was fixed on real rental, as appearing in the Valuation Roll. It was provided that the Commissioners of Supply in each county should establish a sufficient police force; and in police matters Burghal Authorities were empowered to combine with counties if they saw fit.

In 1877 the Prisons (Scotland) Act abolished Local Prisons Boards, and vested all prisons in the Government. The whole cost in connection with prisons then became chargeable to imperial funds.

Under the Local Government Act of 1889, a fixed rate for the upkeep of the constabulary (determined on the average rate of the ten preceding years), is included in the consolidated rate paid by owners only,—the rate required for a deficiency, if any, being imposed one-half on the owners and one-half on the occupiers.

(b) Burghs.

Police or Constabulary Rates.

33. From an early period the burden of maintaining a police force appears to have been laid on the burghs, the cost being met mainly out of the "common good." Up to a comparatively recent period, the heavier part of the burden still lay upon the burghs, the cost being allocated as between counties and burghs according to population, and not according to rental; and the revenue of the "common good" (which had been much dilapidated through mismanagement), proving insufficient to meet the cost, assessment was resorted to, and became general.

It was not until 1860 that the allocation of the assessment, as between burgh and county, was made according to gross rental.

The General Police Act of 1862, under which, in addition to the control of a separate police force, provision was made and powers of assessment given for the lighting, cleaning, paving, improvement and drainage, &c., of burghs, superseded previous Police Acts.

Many of the burghs, however, constituted under the General Act of 1862, while exercising their powers in connection with lighting, cleaning, paving and drainage, maintain no police force of their own, and for constabulary, roads, and general purposes are still treated as part of the county. Such burghs are assessed (1) by the Burgh Commissioners for lighting, cleaning, &c., and (2) by the County Council for constabulary, roads, &c.

Expenditure for Constabulary Purposes in Counties and Burghs.

34. The rate per £ for exclusively constabulary purposes, as between burgh and county, cannot be given; but a comparison of the cost of police administration at different periods will suffice to show the progress of that branch of local taxation. A considerable proportion of the cost of pay and clothing has since 1857 been defrayed from a grant-in-aid, the present sum paid out of the local taxation account amounting to £155,000 per annum. A further sum of £40,000, is also paid annually from the same account towards the cost of police superannuation.

The cost of police in counties and burghs for the four periods of comparison is as follows:—

In 1848	£106,758
1867	223,636
1881	310,724
1893	454,374

Other Expenses of Criminal Establishments borne by, or transferred from Local to, Imperial Funds.

I may state incidentally that while the preceding figures represent the cost of the local constabulary, they do not by any means show the total cost of the criminal establishment in Scotland, a very large proportion of which has, more especially within the last 50 years, been transferred to imperial funds. A share of the cost of criminal proceedings appears to have been first assumed by the Government in 1776, when the Scottish Exchequer began to defray out of the hereditary revenues of the Crown the expenses of criminal prosecutions conducted under the authority of the Lord Advocate. These hereditary revenues having been surrendered to the Exchequer by William IV., on his succession to the throne, the charges have since 1831 been met by votes from Parliament.

As a part of Sir Robert Peel's scheme in aid of rates, the expense of the General Prison at Perth was, in 1846, for the first time, met out of a parliamentary vote, and a contribution was made to Local Boards towards the cost of maintenance of prisoners tried by jury.

In 1851 further sums from imperial funds were given to Local Prison Boards for the upkeep of prisoners convicted by Sheriffs without a jury, a payment not exceeding 4s. per head per week in respect of each prisoner being allowed.

As already stated the whole cost of prisons was transferred to imperial funds by the Prisons Act of 1877.

Sheriff Court buildings are erected and kept up under the Sheriff Court Houses Act, of 1860, and later Act, 47 & 48 Vict. c. 42. The Treasury pay to the County Councils one-half of the estimated expense of buildings, as may be approved by them, the other half being met out of county assessment. They also contribute towards maintenance and repair of Sheriff Court houses under the Act 47 & 48 Vict. c. 42.

VI. Sanitary Rates.

35. The Act of 1427 prohibiting lepers from coming into burghs to purchase food except on certain hours on 3 days in each week, and from dwelling at any place "other than their own hospitals and at the port or gate of the town and other places outwith the burghs," is probably the first Scottish sanitary provision of which there is record. No mention is made in the Act of the funds out of which the hospitals were maintained, though it is probable that they were upheld out of the "common good" of the burgh.

In early times special precautions appear also to have been taken on the outbreak of an epidemic, to prevent the spread of the disease. So far back as 1456 a kind of rude quarantine was enforced in burghs, persons infected with the plague or pestilence being required to remain shut up in their houses and forbidden to mix with the people or go into the country.

The present century, however, was well advanced before any general system of sanitation came into operation. In burghs the foundation of such a system was laid in 1833, when power was given to the Commissioners, under the first of the General Burgh Acts, to construct sewers and drains, to light, clean, and pave, and to bring water into the towns. Powers of borrowing to a very limited extent for carrying out these operations and of assessing were given under this Act, and these powers were extended by the later Acts of 1850 and 1862.

The Removal of Nuisances Acts of 1846, 1848 and 1849, contain certain enactments applicable to the whole country, providing for the investigation of complaints as to nuisances injurious to health and the issue of regulations by the General Board of Health in London. The Board of Supervision in Edinburgh became the central authority for Scotland, but its powers were very limited, being confined to inquiry into the execution of the directions and regulations issued by the General Board of Health. The expenses incurred in carrying out the Acts were defrayed out of the poor rate, or, where no poor rate was imposed, out of a rate levied in the same manner as the poor rate. Penalties for the contravention of these Acts might also be inflicted.

Under the Act of 1856, which superseded the previous Nuisances Removal Acts, extended powers of rating and borrowing were given to the Local Authorities.

Further facilities for the improvement of the sanitary condition of urban and rural districts were provided by the Public Health Act of 1867, the Act at present in force, and additional powers were conferred upon the Central Board. In burghs the rates are levied in the same manner as the police rate, or where no police rate is imposed in the same manner as the poor rate. In rural districts the rate, which until the passing of the Local Government Act of 1889, was levied by the Parochial Board as the landward local authority, is now levied by the County Council. As in the case of the poor law, the public health assessment is levied on net rental, one-half being received from the owners and one-half from the occupiers.

Prior to 1868 any expenditure on sanitary purposes in rural districts was defrayed out of the poor rate, and particulars as to its amount cannot be ascertained. The amount however was inconsiderable, few sanitary measures having been adopted.

The public health assessments raised in counties after the passing of the Act of 1867 were

In 1869	£6,647
1875	19,207
1881	48,182
1887	62,070
1893	69,148

The average rate per £ of assessment in counties calculated upon the purely rural valuation (upon which the rate is levied) was

In 1869	about $\frac{1}{8}$d. per £
1875	„ $\frac{2}{5}$d. „
1881	„ 1d. „
1887	„ $1\frac{3}{10}$d. „
1893	„ $1\frac{1}{2}$d. „

The revenue shown above does not represent the total amounts received or expended by the counties for public health purposes. During 1893, for instance, over £48,000 was received from sources other than assessment.

The expenditure on sanitation in burghs was as follows :—

Year.	Expenditure.
1848	28,861
1867	181,771
1881	412,010
1893	454,706

It will be seen that the expenditure in burghs increased nearly sevenfold between 1848 and 1867, and that between 1867 and 1881 it had more than doubled ; while in 1893 the increase over 1881 was about 10 per cent.

The items of expenditure for the two latter periods are :—

	1881.	1893.
Drainage	46,851	84,543
Water Supply	327,224	218,381
Hospitals	24,695	112,774
Removal of Nuisances	13,240	39,008
Total	412,010	454,706

It will be observed that there has been a substantial increase on every purpose except water supply. On water supply the apparent fall has been considerable. It is accounted for by the fact that a large capital expenditure on water works was incurred in 1881. (Until lately the Scottish Local Taxation Returns were so framed that current and capital expenditure were not distinguished separately.)

4. INCREASE OF VALUATION OF REAL PROPERTY.

36. Prior to 1845 many of the local rates were levied on the old valued rental, as fixed in 1677. Taxation on such a rental fell almost entirely on land, and on land without regard to its present value. The Poor Law Amendment Act directed that assessment should be levied according to the annual value of lands and heritages, the annual value being defined as the rent at which, one year with another, the subject would let, under certain deductions in respect of the probable average cost of upkeep and taxation. *

In 1854 the Valuation Act was passed, in terms of which a roll is annually made up, showing the gross rental of lands and heritages in counties and burghs. That roll now forms the basis upon which all assessments on real rent are levied, and all assessments are now levied on real rent, the only exception being in the case of certain ecclesiastical rates for which the heritors still "stent" themselves on the old valued rent.

The difference between the real rental and the old valued rent at the time of the passing of the Valuation Act was enormous. The total valuation of Scotland as shown in the Valuation Rolls for the year 1855 was nearly £12,000,000 sterling; while the old valued rent (according to House of Commons Paper, No. 207, 1856) was only £3,598,272 Scots, or, reckoning £1 Scots as 1s. 8d. sterling, somewhat under £300,000 sterling.

Throughout this Report the real rental has been adopted as the basis of comparison. I have been unable to ascertain the real rental of the counties for the year 1848, and only an estimate (based on the probable rate of increase in the respective areas between 1848 and 1854) can be given. The estimate, however, is believed to be substantially accurate.

The growth in the valuation of Scotland during the present century has been very great. The real rental at different dates was as follows;—

In 1815	£6,652,000
1841	9,300,000
1848	10,236,000
1856	11,745,000
1867	16,260,000
1874	18,921,000
1881	22,276,000
1892	23,980,000
1893	24,180,000

Assuming that the old valued rent was a fair value at the time, and that the then value of the £ Scots was 1s. 8d. sterling, the value of real property has in 216 years increased from £300,000 to £24,180,000; or if the comparison be confined to the available figures of the present century the annual value of real property has risen since 1815 from (in round numbers) $6\frac{3}{4}$ millions pounds sterling to 24 millions pounds sterling, being about 260 per cent. of increase.

---

* A very large and important assessment, that on "Statute labour roads," which in 1848 was almost universal over the country, differed in its incidence from every other local burden. In the Middle Ward of Lanarkshire, for instance, the rate was levied on—"Land for each ploughgate, six days' labour of two men, horses, and carts, equal to from £2, 10s. to £3, 12s., according to proved rate of labour. Horses other than for husbandry, for each horse, three days' labour of a man, horse and cart, equal to from 8s. 6d. to 12s. Householders, not less than two, nor more than four days' labour." In Kirkcudbright, the assessment was levied as follows:—"30s. per £100 Scots valuation from 26 parishes, and 20s. per £100 Scots valuation from two parishes" (Extract from Parliamentary Paper, No. 244, 1858).

An increase of 53 per cent. occurred between 1815 and 1848; of 58 per cent. between 1848 and 1867; of 37 per cent. between 1867 and 1881; and of 8 per cent. between 1881 and 1893.

The valuation of urban districts has increased as follows :—

Year.	Valuation.
1848	† £3,000,000
1856	3,599,000
1867	5,395,000
1881	10,566,000
1885	11,446,000
1890	12,205,000
1891	12,518,000
1892	12,894,000
1893	13,078,000

This valuation includes the rentals of all burghs,—royal, parliamentary and police.

The rise in the burgh valuation is most noticeable between the years 1867 and 1881. There is no doubt that this rise is mainly due to the many new burghs created under the Act of 1862; and to the rapid increase of the population in the larger towns, and the increased house accommodation thus required.

The assessable county valuation included a number of burghs which, for certain purposes, are assessed in the county; but by deducting the total burghal valuation from the valuation of the whole country, the valuation of the landward or rural districts may be obtained * :—

Year.	Landward Valuation.
1848	† £7,236,000
1867	10,865,000
1881	11,710,000
1885	12,104,000
1890	11,379,000
1893	11,102,000

It is important to ascertain the relative values of various descriptions of real property at different periods; and through the courtesy of Mr Fraser, Comptroller of Stamps and Taxes for Scotland, I have been able to construct a Table (Table 16 of Appendix A), showing the gross assessable value of (1) land, (2) buildings, and (3) other property: I shall revert to the subject later on; meanwhile, it may be stated that the percentage of valuation at different periods during the century was briefly as follows :—

---

* The county valuations for general assessing purposes were :—

In 1848	† £7,236,000
1867	11,313,000
1881	13,864,000
1885	14,102,000
1890	13,716,000
1893	13,299,000

It must, however, be noted that many police burghs and certain small royal and parliamentary burghs are assessed in the county for police, road, or other purposes, and consequently these valuations now include the valuations of the burghs in question, and are much in excess of the valuation of the landward districts,—as has been explained.

The county valuation roll includes, and county assessments are levied on :—

I. The Rural Area of the county.

II. Police Burghs having a population of less than 7000 for county purposes other than (a) Public Health, and (b) in certain cases—roads.

III. Police Burghs with a population of or over 7000 for county purposes other than (a) Public Health, (b) Police where a separate force is maintained, and (c) in certain cases—roads.

IV. Royal and Parliamentary Burghs with a population of less than 7000 for Police and Contagious Diseases (Animals) Assessments.

V. All Royal and Parliamentary Burghs which do not maintain a separate police force—for Police Assessment.

VI. Royal Burghs over 7000, which do not return, or do not contribute to return a Burgh member to Parliament, for Contagious Diseases (Animals) Assessment.

† Estimate.

Year.	Lands.	Buildings.	* Other Property.
1814–5	76·4	20·6	3·0
1848–9	54·1	33·5	12·4

1881–2	33·7	52·9	13·4
1892–3	26·0	56·4	17·6

It would further appear from the same Table (Table 16, App. A), that the rental of land, which in 1814–5 was £5,080,000, increased annually till 1879–80. It then reached a maximum of £7,769,000, when the increase was arrested, and a diminution set in; the fall in agricultural rent during the 13 years, ending May 1893, being no less than £1,478,000.† Since 1814–5 the rental of buildings has risen from £1,369,000 to £13,643,000; and the rental of other property from £203,000 to £4,247,000.

5. GEOGRAPHICAL STATEMENT.

37. The burden of local rates is not uniform; and I propose in this section to deal with their geographical distribution. The reasons why one district should be more heavily or more lightly rated than another are not always obvious; but a careful analysis of the figures may enable us to arrive at certain general conclusions.

(a) Poor Rates.

38. The Table on the following page shows the burden of poor rates in each county in the years 1856, 1867, 1874, 1881, and 1893, with the rise or fall in each between 1856 and 1893. The year 1856 is taken as the first year for comparison, being the earliest year for which the Parochial Valuation Rolls are available. The results have been arrived at by dividing the amount of assessment by the gross valuation of the assessed parishes.

The Table shows the almost universal reduction in the amount of the poor rate levied since 1856. In 11 counties there has been a decrease of 6d. in the £ and upwards, and of these 11 counties, 9 may be said to be agricultural or pastoral. In 20 counties the decrease has been between 2d. and 6d. per £, and in this division the mining, industrial, and agricultural counties are about equally represented. In 2 agricultural counties, Zetland and Caithness, the rate has gone up by 7d. and 3½d. respectively.

The most heavily burdened counties for poor law purposes in 1856 were, Zetland, Ross and Cromarty, Orkney, Sutherland, Argyll, and Inverness, all being rated at over 1s. 7d. per £.

In 1893 the same counties (excepting Argyll) were still the most heavily rated, the rate in each case being over 1s. 3d. per £. A satisfactory fall in the rates, from 1s. 8d. to 11½d. per £, had meanwhile taken place in Argyllshire; but an increase of 3½d. per £ (i.e., from 1s. 5¾d. to 1s. 9¼d.) had taken place in the average rate in Caithness.

In Zetland the poor rate levied in 1856 pressed severely on the county. It was on an average 2s. 4½d. per £ of valuation; being considerably more than double the average rate throughout Scotland. In 1893 the pressure was still greater, when the average rate had reached 2s. 11½d.; while the average rate of Scotland had decreased to 7½d. per £. The rate in Shetland was therefore almost 4¾ times as heavy as the average rate over the whole country.

* Other property consists of railways, canals, mines, quarries, iron works, gas works, water works, &c.

† It would appear that the fall in agricultural rent is even greater than is shown here (vide paragraph 3 (d).).

* In the county of Caithness there was an increase of 3·6d., and in Zetland there was an increase of 7·0d.

Forty-nine per cent. of the assessed parishes were rated at 1s. per £ and upwards for poor relief in 1874; in 1893 the proportion of such parishes had diminished to twenty-eight per cent.

The parishes in which a poor rate of 4s. per £ and upwards was levied in 1874 and 1893 are shown in the following Table.

			Dunrossness,	Zetland,	4 0

It will be observed that all these parishes belong to the Highland and Island group of counties; and that in 1893 as many as ten were parishes in the county of Zetland.

But it must be kept in view that where, throughout this Report, the actual rates in specified parishes are given, the assessment is calculated on the net rental; and the net or assessable rental, unlike the gross rental, is a varying quantity, dependent on the amount of deductions under section 37 of the Poor Law Act of 1845, which may be allowed in the case of each parish by the Parochial Board. That amount is not uniform, and is in certain cases excessive. There is reason to believe that deductions exceptionally high have been given in certain of the Zetland parishes.

(b) School Rates.

40. I have no actual statistics of the rates which the landowners or heritors in each county imposed on themselves for the maintenance of parish schools; the statement in a subsequent paragraph of the Report that the average rate, before the passing of the Education Act of 1872, would be approximately one-half the rate levied in 1874, about 1·3d. per £ is an estimate only; but the following Table shows the progressive rise of the rate in each county since the passing of the Act:—

Average Rate for Scotland	2·6	4·5	6·1	3·5

The education rate has increased in every county since 1874. The average over Scotland has been increased from 2·6d. to 6·1d., a rise of 3·5d. or 135 per cent. The assessments in 1874 being higher in Highland and Island than in Lowland Counties, the rate of increase during that period has, on the whole, been less rapid in the Highlands and Islands.

In 7 counties the rise has been over 4d. per £ of gross valuation; in 12 counties over 3d. and under 4d. per £; in 8 counties over 2d. and under 3d. per £; and in 6 counties it has been 2d. per £ and under.

This rate which, 20 years ago, was small, has rapidly become a very heavy burden. In 1893 it amounted on an average

In 1 County to 11d. per £.
2 Counties 8d. and under 11d. per £.

In no county is it so low as 3d. per £.

School Rates in Landward Parishes.

41. The following Statement shows the number of parishes in which school rates, varying from under 6d. per £ to 2s. 6d. per £, were imposed in 1874 and 1893.

It will be seen that in many parishes the school rate now presses with great weight; and (as in the case of the poor rates) the abnormally high school rates are found, as a rule, in Highland and Island parishes.

The parishes rated at 1s. 6d. per £ and upwards in 1874 and 1893 are as follows:—

School Rates in Burghs.

42. In burghs also the school rates have risen considerably during the past 20 years, as will be seen from the following Table:—

(c) Poor and School Rates combined.

(1) Geographical Distribution of Heaviest Rates.

43. I have dealt throughout this Report, in considerable detail, with the Parish Rates, for three reasons. (1) They are the only burdens affecting the whole area of the country—burgh and landward; (2) with the exception of burgh rating (which in great part is remunerative), they are the heaviest local rates levied, and (3) they are the only General rates, the pressure of which falls equally on owners and occupiers.

Parish rates embrace the following assessments:—poor rates, school rates, and, in certain Parishes, valuation rates, registration rates, and burial ground rates.

In the following analysis, however, only poor and school rates will be considered. No statistics of the rates, other than poor and school, prior to 1881, can be obtained; but there is every reason to believe that the incidence of these rates was practically the same in 1856 as at the present time. In any case, however, the average rates for the purposes of valuation, registration, and burial grounds are so inconsiderable in parishes (amounting in all to about ¼d. per £ on the average), that for the purposes of comparison it is unnecessary to include them.

I have already said that specific information regarding the school rates levied before the passing of the Education Act by the Heritors on themselves cannot now be obtained, but from information gleaned from various sources I estimate that the average rate over the whole country slightly exceeded 1d. per £, or about one-half the rate levied in the first year after the Education Act of 1872 took effect. In comparing the parish rates of 1856 with those of later periods, I have considered that the average rate of increase over the whole of Scotland, between 1856 and 1874, might be taken as the criterion of the average rate of increase in individual counties, and have accordingly estimated that the average school rate imposed in each county in 1856 was equal to one-half of the average rate imposed in the county in 1874.

If, on this basis, we examine narrowly the geographical distribution of parish rates at different periods, it will be found, as a rule, (1) that the most heavily rated counties in 1856 are still the most heavily rated,—the exceptional burden of local taxation having, so to speak, become hereditary; and (2) that these heavily rated counties are chiefly situated in the Highlands and Islands. The counties where the rates were highest in 1856 and succeeding years are shown in the following Table:—

It will be seen that Zetland heads every column. It was in 1856, and still is, by far the most heavily rated area in Scotland. In 1856 it had a rate of 6d. per £ more than any other county; in 1874, 1s. 4d.; in 1881, 1s. 5½d.; and in 1893, 1s. 5d. In 1856 the rate in Zetland was 120 per cent. above the average of Scotland; in 1874, 246 per cent.; in 1881, 240 per cent.; and in 1893, 242 per cent.

Of the 18 counties in which the rate was over the average in 1856, 12 were still over the average in 1874, 1881, and 1893.

The counties which have uniformly had the highest parish rates are Zetland, Caithness, Orkney, Ross and Cromarty, Sutherland, Inverness, Banff, and Argyll, the counties forming the Northern and Western Highlands.

In support of my statement that high rating for parish purposes in the Highlands has become hereditary, I would again refer to the preceding Table. We find that the counties rated over 1s. 11d. per £ were in 1856.	1874.	1881.	1893.

Zetland	Zetland	Zetland	Zetland
Orkney	Orkney	Orkney	Orkney
...	Caithness	Caithness	Caithness
Sutherland	...	Sutherland	Sutherland
Ross	Ross	Ross	Ross
...	Inverness	...	...
...	Banff	...	...

The counties of Zetland, Orkney and Ross, appear in the list for each year, while Caithness and Sutherland are found in three out of the four lists.

(2) Parishes having exceptionally high Parish Rates.

44. I have been dealing hitherto with the average parish rate over whole counties; when we come to look at the parishes individually we find that there are a considerable number where abnormally high rates (say 3s. in the £ and upwards) have been, and continue to be levied. Thus the number of parishes having parish rates of—

	In 1874.	In 1885.	In 1893.
3s. and under 4s. per £ was . . .	32	16	18
4s. „ 5s. „ „ . . .	13	11	9
5s. „ 6s. „ „ . . .	3	9	5

8s. „ 9s. „ „ . . .	...	1	1
9s. „ 10s. „ „ . . .	...	1	1

It is perhaps unnecessary to add that these parishes belong almost exclusively to the Highland and Island district to which I have referred. High as the parochial rates are, they do not comprise the whole of the local burdens falling upon these areas, the county rates having still to be added.

(d) County Rates.

Increase of direct county rates proper.

45. Great difficulty has been experienced in many counties in obtaining accurate information with regard to the rates levied in early years, the records of the Statute Labour Roads Trusts in some cases being amissing, and in others very deficient. It has accordingly been frequently necessary to supplement the information obtained from the County Books by estimates of the Statute Labour Roads Assessment, based on the figures contained in the Report of the Commissioners for inquiring into matters relating to public roads in Scotland, dated 1859, and it is believed that the figures shown in Table 9 of Appendix A are substantially and for all practical purposes sufficiently accurate.

It must be kept in view that in 1848 in all the counties, with the exception of Argyll, Bute, Ross and Cromarty, Sutherland, Orkney and Zetland, the roads were in great part maintained out of assessment indirectly levied as tolls,* and that except in these counties the great apparent increase of the county rates is to a considerable extent due to the transfer of the burden of road expenditure, the heaviest of all county burdens, from an indirect to a direct tax.

Consequently, any comparison of the direct county rating of the present time with previous periods in which this is not taken into account would be misleading. Omitting expenditure on roads, however, it would still appear that rural expenditure falling upon the rates has increased in a still greater ratio than rural valuation, and that, on the average, the pressure of rural rates† (exclusive of Road Rates) was greater by about $2\frac{1}{4}$d. per £ in the year 1893 than in the year 1848.

The county rates levied in 1893 must now be briefly examined. These rates have been ascertained by dividing the amount of assessment collected by the assessable valuation of the county, used for general county assessments. I am aware that this will not give the absolutely true rate levied, there being different assessable valuations in many counties for roads, for constabulary, and for other purposes; but it is necessary that the same principle should be adhered to throughout the report, and, for the present purpose, the difference, being on an average not more than $\frac{3}{4}$d. per £, is immaterial.

I find then that the average county rate in 1893 was $11\frac{1}{4}$d. per £. In 14 counties the rate exceeded 1s. per £. These counties were :—

	s.	d.		s.	d.
Orkney	1	$9\frac{3}{4}$	Inverness	1	1
Nairn	1	$8\frac{1}{4}$	Sutherland	1	1

Argyll	1	2	Edinburgh	1	$0\frac{1}{4}$
Linlithgow	1	$1\frac{1}{4}$	Selkirk	1	$0\frac{1}{4}$

With the exception of Renfrew these counties may all be considered chiefly pastoral or agricultural.

The actual rates per £ levied on owners and occupiers in each assessing area for county purposes will be found in Table 1 of Appendix A.

(e) Parish and County Rates combined.

46. Table 10 of Appendix A shows the rates which may be considered the average burdens falling upon rural districts in 1856, 1874, 1881, and 1893. I must again point out, however, that while in some counties heavy increases have occurred, the average increase of rural rates may be regarded as being balanced by the reduction of indirect county assessment following the abolition of tolls on turnpike roads, and that the increase may be looked upon more as a change in the mode of rating than as an increase of rates.†

The total increase of direct rural Rates therefore in 1893 as compared with 1848, was 0 $5\frac{1}{4}$d. per £.

On the other hand, Revenue from Tolls (now abolished) would in 1849 have produced a rate per £ on the Gross Rental of Scotland, including Burghs, equal to $5\frac{1}{2}$d.

The average rate per £ of Parish rates in certain years is shown in the table on page xxxviii.

The following Table shows the counties in which the pressure of direct rates for all purposes in 1856, 1874, 1881, and 1893 was greatest :—

The average rural rate for 1893 shown here is stated as 2s. 0¾d., and it is roughly obtained by adding the average county rate proper to the average parish rate for Scotland. From a careful examination and allocation of the parish rates, however, it would appear that the total average rate levied in rural districts would be more accurately stated at 2s. 0·4d., as shown in paragraph 18.

As might be anticipated from a perusal of the Tables of parish rates, the counties having the heaviest total burdens are almost invariably the Highland and Island ; the 9 counties rated at over 2s. 6d. per £ being all in that district of the country.

Zetland* again holds the unenviable position of being the most highly rated county, and it is followed at some distance by Orkney, Sutherland and Caithness. It will also be observed that nearly all the heavily burdened counties are mainly pastoral or agricultural.

Landward Parishes and parts of Parishes having exceptionally high Rates for all purposes.

47. There is shown in Table 12 of Appendix A, those rural parishes or (where the parish is partly burghal) rural parts of parishes in which the rate per £ of all rates in 1893 exceeded 4s. per £ of assessable rental.

It appears that the rating was as follows :—

In	1	Parish,	11s. 7¾d.	per £.
,,	4	Parishes	9s. and under	10s.	per £.

These parishes are all situated in the heavily rated district to which I have had occasion to refer on several previous occasions.

* Extract from Report of Mr Peterkin, General Superintendent of Poor, dated 15th July 1893.

The small rental of the lands and heritages in Shetland (reduced still further by the decisions of the Crofter Commissioners) has necessitated unusually high poor rates and school rates as well. . . The fact remains that the burden on lands and heritages in Shetland is excessive. The wealth of Shetland lies undoubtedly, not in the land, which as a whole is poor and unproductive, but in the sea —and as the great bulk of the people are fishermen, or connected in some way with the fishing industry, their crofts can only be regarded as mere dwelling-places when on shore, and which they have on payment of not more than would be required in towns for the use of one or two rooms. It is very obvious that when the proprietor of lands depends solely upon his rents the burden of the rates must in his case be most oppressive.

The following statement shows the 12 most highly burdened areas in Scotland, with the amount of rates falling upon the owner and occupier in each :—

I must again, however, draw attention to the fact that the Parochial Rates are levied not upon gross, but assessable rental, and that the deductions allowed from gross rental in arriving at net assessable rental in Zetland are very high, amounting in some parishes to 33⅓ per cent.

(f) † RATES PER £ OF ALL RATES LEVIED IN URBAN DISTRICTS.

48. Table 11 of Appendix A shows the total actual rates levied in burgh areas for all purposes, exclusive of rates levied in special water supply and drainage districts. These rates vary greatly, ranging from 1s. 4d. in Laurencekirk to 7s. 2¼d. in Tobermory. While in no case is the total rating of a burgh so high as in the most highly rated rural districts, yet in many instances it presses with great severity on the ratepayers. It should be kept in view that the parochial rates included in the general rates are levied on net rental, and that burgh and county rates are imposed on gross rental.

In 1892–3 the rates amounted to

* These burghs are in several parishes or parts of parishes, and their rates vary in the parochial areas, for, although the burgh rate proper is uniform over the whole urban area, the poor rates generally differ in each parochial area of the burgh. In addition to the general rating areas of the burgh, special areas are frequently formed into drainage and water supply districts, and are assessed specially for drainage, or water supply, or both, as the case may be.

6. AMOUNT OF DIRECT LOCAL TAXATION BORNE BY LANDS, HOUSES, AND OTHER PROPERTY, RESPECTIVELY, IN 1848 AND 1893.

49. It has been seen from the figures given in paragraph 36, that, whereas in 1848 the valuation of land was in excess of that of all other classes of real property, the relative proportions had, prior to 1893, been so radically altered, that in that year land represented little more than a fourth of the whole.

I have no complete Returns showing the proportion of rates borne respectively by—(1) Land, (2) Buildings, (3) Other Property: a rough approximation may be arrived at by apportioning the assessments according to the gross rental.*

(I.) Parish Assessments.

The parish rates (excluding heritors' rates), amounting in 1848 to £465,000, and in 1893 to £1,394,000, were levied over the whole area of Scotland, burghal and rural. By apportioning the parish rates produced in these years according to the rental of each class of property, and making allowance for the effect of classification† on the amounts of the rates falling on each class in classified parishes, it is found that in 1848 the parish rates were raised as follows:—

From Land,	£245,000
Houses,	162,000
Other Property,	58,000

and in 1893

From Land,	£329,000
Houses,	825,000
Other Property,	240,000

Heritors' assessments will be dealt with as if entirely falling on land.

(II.) County or Rural Assessments.

County rates being levied on gross rental, fell on lands, &c. in proportion to that rental.

The proportion of land in burghs being inconsiderable, it has been disregarded in arriving at an estimate of the rates falling on land, all the land valued in 1893 at £6,291,000 being taken as rated in the county. It is further estimated that the valuation of buildings in 1893 was £4,048,000, and that the annual value of railways, canals, mines, quarries, fishings, shootings, and other property was £3,000,000.

Apportioning the total county assessment for 1893 in the ratio of the estimated rental of each class of property, and allowing for the lower average county rate levied on those burghs assessed by the county authorities, it would appear that, broadly speaking, there was raised from

Land,	£310,000
Buildings,	170,000
Other Property,	139,000

With regard to 1848, the same principle of allocation has been followed, the relative estimated rentals of land, buildings, and other property in that year being of course used. It is found that the amount of rates fell as follows:—

On Land,	£138,000
Buildings,	22,000
Other Property,	18,000

---

* The gross rental of land, buildings, and other property, respectively, for various years, is shown in Table 16 of Appendix A.

† In 1848 there were 85 parishes, and in 1893, 168 parishes in which occupants were classified for parish rating, land being commonly rated at one-third, and mines, quarries, manufactures, &c. at two-thirds the rate on houses.

It is considered that, in addition to the preceding, the following rates fell wholly on land :—

Heritors' Rates.	1848.	1893.
For Education, ...	50,000	...
For Ecclesiastical Purposes, . . .	30,000	35,000
	80,000	35,000

(III.) Burgh or Urban Assessments.

The burgh rates are, in the main, levied on gross rental. It is estimated that the rental of buildings in burghs in 1893 amounted to £11,831,000, and other burgh property had a rental of £1,247,000, of which, speaking very broadly, £250,000 was assessed at one-fourth of the full burgh rate ; or, reducing the rental of the property assessed at the low rate by three-fourths, say to £60,000, the rental of other property paying the full rate may be estimated at £1,060,000.

By allocating the assessments in proportion to the estimated rentals of the burgh buildings (£11,831,000), and of the other property (£1,060,000), we find that, of the total assessment of £1,722,000, there was raised from

Buildings	£1,580,000
and other Property (not land) . . .	142,000

Apportioning the burgh assessments for 1848 on a similar basis, it being considered that the valuations of buildings and of other property might be £2,500,000 and £500,000 respectively :—

Buildings contributed	£150,000
and other Property (not land) . . .	30,000

Collecting the rates levied in all the areas, the result is shown in the following Table :—

Total . .	463,000	334,000	106,000	674,000	2,575,000	531,000

The estimated amounts and proportions of local rates borne by lands, houses and other property, are shown in the following Table :—

Year.	Assessments falling upon
	Lands.		Buildings.		Other Property.
	Amount.	Percentage.	Amount.	Percentage.	Amount.	Percentage.
	£		£		£
1848	463,000	51·3	334,000	37·0	106,000	11·7
1893	674,000	17·8	2,575,000	68·1	531,000	14·1

In 1848, 51·3 per cent. of the total rates was derived from land, and 48·7 from buildings and other property; in 1893, 17·8 per cent. only was obtained from land, whereas 82·2 per cent. of the rates was received in respect of buildings and other property.

Teinds, though a burden on land, not being of the nature of a local tax or rate, have not been included in this Report. According to a House of Lords Return—No. 90, 1888,—the total amount of "Teinds appropriated to Stipend and Communion Elements" was £242,330. To produce this amount, a rate of 9¼d. per £ on the present gross rental of land in Scotland would be required.

178,000 in rural districts.

In 1867, of the total receipts from rates (£1,793,000),

£555,000 were raised in urban districts.

£1,722,000 were raised in urban districts.
1,429,000 in parochial districts.

3. In 1848, the gross valuation of Scotland, according to returns made to the Board of Supervision by Inspectors of Poor, was, . £10,236,000 of which the valuation of urban districts is estimated at £3,000,000 and of rural districts, ... 7,236,000

In 1867, the total valuation was £16,260,000
the assessable burgh valuation was . . . 5,395,000
and the assessable rural valuation was . . . 11,313,000*

In 1881, the total valuation was £22,276,000
the assessable burgh valuation was . . . 10,566,000
and the assessable rural valuation was . . 13,864,000*

In 1893, the total valuation was £24,180,000
the assessable burgh valuation was . . . 13,078,000
and the assessable rural valuation was . . 13,299,000*

4. In 1848, the average rate in the £ of all rates for the whole of Scotland, calculated on the gross valuation, was . s. 1 d. $9\frac{1}{4}$

In 1867 it was . . . . . 2 $2\frac{1}{2}$
In 1881 it was . . . . . 2 $7\frac{3}{4}$
In 1893 it was . . . . . 3 $1\frac{1}{2}$

5. Calculated on the same principle, the average rates per £ levied by urban, rural, and parochial authorities were,

	s.	d.
In 1848,
Urban Authorities, ...	1	$2\frac{1}{2}$
Rural Authorities, ...	0	6
Parochial Authorities, ...	1	$0\frac{3}{4}$

In 1881,

* The rural valuation for assessing purposes included many burghs also included under the assessable burgh valuation. Vide foot-note to page xxxii.

In 1893,	s.	d.
Urban Authorities,	2	7½
Rural Authorities,	0	11½
Parochial Authorities,	1	2¼

6. Apportioning the total assessments raised, the average rates in the £ levied by burgh and rural authorities were,

In 1848,	s.	d.
Urban Districts,	2	5
Rural Districts,	1	6
In 1893,
Urban Districts,	3	8½
Rural Districts,	2	0½

So that in rural districts there has been a rise of 6½d. per £ as against 1s. 3½d. in urban districts; but it should be borne in mind that the indirect Road Rate (tolls) which was collected in 1848 is no longer levied.

7. Of the above taxation, the rate per £ in respect of non-remunerative taxes had decreased, and the rate per £ of remunerative taxation had largely increased between 1848 and 1893.

The rate per £ of non-remunerative taxation was :—

In 1848,	s.	d.
On Urban Districts,	1	6¾
Rural Districts,	0	11¼
In 1893,
On Urban Districts,	0	10½
Rural Districts,	0	8¾

and the rate per £ of remunerative taxation was :—

In 1848,
On Urban Districts,	0	10¼
Rural Districts,	0	6¾
In 1893,
On Urban Districts,	2	10
Rural Districts,	1	3¾

8. The decline in the rate per £ of non-remunerative taxes in Rural Districts is attributable to the fall in the rate for relief of the poor. The great increase in remunerative rating in rural districts is mainly due to (1) the transfer of road expenditure from indirect to direct taxation, (2) the new school board rates, and (3) additional rating for sanitary purposes.

9. The diminution in the non-remunerative rates in urban districts is also due to reduced poor law burdens, while the remunerative rating has risen on account of greater expenditure on education, sanitation, roads and burgh improvement generally.

10. For the higher direct rates in rural districts, therefore, improved roads, a better system of education, and more satisfactory sanitation are obtained. In urban districts also, the increased assessment has been devoted to education, sanitation (sewage, drainage, water-supply, scavenging, &c.), burgh improvements, and other operations tending to increased health and comfort generally.

11. The average rates are higher both in rural and urban districts at the present time than at any other period for which statistics are available.

12. In 1848, local indebtedness amounted to £4,683,000, of which £2,594,000 was owing by urban authorities, and £2,089,000 by rural authorities.

In 1867, the local indebtedness was £8,108,000, of which £6,071,000 was owing by urban authorities, £1,832,000 by rural authorities, and £205,000 by parochial authorities.

In 1881 the local indebtedness was £20,162,000, of which £15,900,000 was owing by urban authorities, £1,240,000 by rural authorities, and £3,022,000 by parochial authorities.

In 1893 the local indebtedness was £28,296,000, of which £23,490,000 was owing by urban authorities, £733,000 by rural authorities, and £4,073,000 by parochial authorities.

13. I estimate that the amount of direct local taxation borne in 1848 by land, as defined in the Income Tax Schedule Valuation, was £463,000, and that in 1893 it had increased to £674,000.

The valuation of land in 1848–9 was £5,634,000. It gradually increased till it reached a maximum of £7,769,000 in 1879–80, from which date it diminished, and in 1892–3 it amounted to £6,291,000.*

14. The amount of direct local taxation borne by houses and other property (excluding land) I estimate to have been £440,000 in 1848, and in 1893, £3,106,000.

The valuation of houses and other property (excluding land) in 1848–9 was £4,785,000; in 1892–3, £17,889,000.

15. Local taxation burdens press very heavily on Highland and Island counties; and abnormally high rates are borne by several individual areas in that district—more particularly the County of Zetland.

16. The great bulk of the increased rating is raised in urban districts, and as urban rates fall mainly on the occupier, by far the greatest relative increase of local rating is borne by the occupiers of urban property, whose new rates belong mainly, however, to the "remunerative" class.

17. So far as the Returns collected show, the imperial subventions distributed to local authorities in 1892–3 amounted to £1,357,000; of this sum £206,000 was paid to burgh authorities, £177,000 to county authorities, and £974,000 to parochial authorities. These amounts represented a rate per £ of gross rental of—

s.	d.
0	$3\frac{3}{4}$	. .	on burgh ratepayers,
0	$3\frac{1}{4}$	. .	on county ratepayers, and
0	$9\frac{3}{4}$	. .	on parish ratepayers, respectively.

18. I have taken 1848 as a convenient starting point; but it appears that, for several years prior to 1848, the burden of local taxation, which had been comparatively light during the first thirty or forty years of the century, had shown a decided tendency to increase. Since 1848 the increase in local taxation expenditure has been very rapid, and in view, more especially, of recent legislation, it seems probable that the expenditure in counties, parishes, and burghs will continue to grow.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

John Skelton.

(I must acknowledge the valuable assistance which Mr John T. Maxwell, of the Statistical Department of the Local Government Board (Scotland), has rendered me in the preparation of this Report. The Tables in the Appendices have also been compiled by him, or under his direction.—J. S.)

* This amount is somewhat greater than the actual rent received by the landowners (vide page vii (d)).

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. In such cases the average rate has been obtained by dividing the amount of assessment produced by the assessable rental. Parishes in which there is a classification of occupants under Section 36 of the Poor Law Act are denoted by the letter C. In these parishes the rate upon owners is taken as the average rate upon occupiers. Parishes in which assessment is levied according to "established usage" are denoted by the letters E.U. The populations of burghs apply to the police area.

By running the eye horizontally across the page, the amount per £. of the parochial, burghal, and county rates respectively levied in each parish in Scotland, and where a parish is partly in the county area and partly in a burgh, or police burgh, the amount per £. in each part can be ascertained. The rates have not been totalled, because parish rates being levied on a net rateable value, while county and burgh rates are, as a rule, levied on the gross value, the result of totalling would to that extent be misleading.

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

By running the eye horizontally across the page the amount per £. of the parochial, burghal, and county rates respectively levied in each parish in Scotland, and where a parish is partly in the county area and partly in a burgh, or police burgh, the amount per £. in each part can be ascertained. The rates have not been totalled, because parish rates being levied on a net rateable value, while county and burgh rates are, as a rule, levied on the gross value, the result of totalling would to that extent be misleading.

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. † The Parishes of Edinburgh, St. Cuthbert's Combination, North Leith, South Leith, Liberton, and Duddingston, are situate wholly or partly within the compulsory area of the Edinburgh and District Water Trust, and a rate of ½d. per £. on owner and 6d. per £. on occupier is levied within that area. The parishes of Colinton, Cramond, Duddingston, South Leith, Currie, Kirkliston, Ratho, Glencorse, and Inveresk, are situated wholly or partly outwith the compulsory area, and a rate of 8½ l. per £. is levied upon occupiers, in the portion of the parish in the Water Supply District outwith the compulsory area. The parishes of Corstorphine, Liberton, and Lasswade, are also wholly or partly situated in the district outwith the compulsory area, but are supplied by meter chiefly. These rates have been included above only in the Edinburgh and Leith Burgh Rates.

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

By running the eye horizontally across the page the amount per £. of the parochial, burghal, and county rates respectively levied in each parish in Scotland, and where a parish is partly in the county area and partly in a burgh, or police burgh, the amount per £. in each part can be ascertained. The rates have not been totalled because, parish rates being levied on a net rateable value, while county and burgh rates are, as a rule, levied on the gross value, the result of totalling would to that extent be misleading.

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

By running the eye horizontally across the page the amount per £. of the parochial, burghal, and county rates respectively levied in each parish in Scotland, and, where a parish is partly in the county area and partly in a burgh, or police burgh, the amount per £. in each part can be ascertained. The rates have not been totalled because, parish rates being levied on a net ratenble value, while county and burgh rates are, as a rule, levied on the gross value, the result of totalling would to that extent be misleading.

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

By running the eye horizontally across the page the amount per £. of the parochial, burghal, and county rates respectively levied in each parish in Scotland, and where a parish is partly in the county area and partly in a burgh, or police burgh, the amount per £. in each part can be ascertained. The rates have not been totalled because, parish rates being levied on a net rateable value, while county and burgh rates are, as a rule, levied on the gross value, the result of totalling would to that extent be misleading.

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. In such cases the average rate has been obtained by dividing the amount of assessment produced by the assessable rental. Parishes in which there is a classification of occupants under Section 36 of the Poor Law Act are denoted by the letter C. In these parishes the rate upon owners is taken as the average rate upon occupiers. Parishes in which assessment is levied according to "established usage" are denoted by the letters E.U. The population of burghs apply to the police area.

By running the eye horizontally across the page the amount per £. of the parochial, burghal, and county rates respectively levied in each parish in Scotland, and, where a parish is partly in the county area and partly in a burgh, or police burgh, the amount per £. in each part can be ascertained. The rates have not been totalled because, parish rates being levied on a net rateable value, while county and burgh rates are as a rule levied on the gross value, the result of totalling would to that extent be misleading.

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

By running the eye horizontally across the page the amount per £. of the parochial, burghal, and county rates respectively levied in each parish in Scotland, and, where a parish is partly in the county area and partly in a burgh, or police burgh, the amount per £. in each part can be ascertained. The rates have not been totalled because, parish rates being levied on a net rateable value, while county and burgh rates are, are as a rule, levied on the gross value, the result of totalling would to that extent be misleading.

The letters R & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

By running the eye horizontally across the page the amount per £. of the parochial, burghal, and county rates respectively levied in each parish in Scotland, and where a parish is partly in the county area and partly in a burgh, or police burgh, the amount per £. in each part can be ascertained. The rates have not been totalled because, parish rates being levied on a net rateable value, while county and burgh rates are, as a rule, levied on the gross value, the result of totalling would to that extent be misleading.

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

By running the eye horizontally across the page the amount per £. of the parochial, burghal, and county rates respectively levied in each parish in Scotland, and, where a parish is partly in the county area and partly in a burgh, or police burgh, the amount per £. in each part can be ascertained. The rates have not been totalled because, parish rates being levied on a net rateable value, while county and burgh rates are, as a rule, levied on the gross value, the result of totalling would to that extent be misleading.

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. In such cases the average rate has been obtained by dividing the amount of assessment produced by the assessable rental. Parishes in which there is a classification of occupants under Section 36 of the Poor Law Act are denoted by the letter C. In these parishes the rate upon owners is taken as the average rate upon occupiers. Parishes in which assessment is levied according to "established usage" are denoted by the letters E.U. The populations of burghs apply to the police area.

By running the eye horizontally across the page the amount per £. of the parochial, burghal, and county rates, respectively levied in each parish in Scotland, and, where a parish is partly in the county area and partly in a burgh, or police burgh, the amount per £. in each part can be ascertained. The rates have not been totalled because, parish rates being levied on a net rateable value, while county and burgh rates are as a rule, levied on the gross value, the result of totalling would to that extent be misleading.

* The County Rates shown under the years 1856 and 1874, are not for those years, but for 1848 and 1867 respectively, the nearest years for which the information is available.

Note.—The increase of County Rating in the later years is largely due to the abolition of Turnpike Roads, and the cost of these Roads being transferred from indirect assessment obtained through tolls, &c., to a direct assessment on Rental.

In 1848 a large proportion of the Roads were managed under the Turnpike Act of 1831, in every County except Argyll, Bute, Orkney, Ross, Sutherland, and Zetland. Between 1848 and 1867, turnpikes were abolished in Aberdeen, Caithness, Inverness, Kirkcudbright, Nairn, and Peebles; between 1867 and 1881 in Banff, Clackmannan, Elgin, Fife, Forfar, Haddington, Kincardine, Kinross, Perth, Selkirk, Stirling, and Wigtown; and between 1881 and 1893, in the remainder of the Counties, viz., Ayr, Berwick, Dumbarton, Dumfries, Edinburgh, Lanark, Linlithgow Renfrew, and Roxburgh.

In Bute and Zetland, the Roads were maintained by statute labour or by the proprietors who charged the tenants until the Roads and Bridges Act of 1878 took effect.

The amounts for 1890–91 and 1891–92 have been supplied by the Secretary for Scotland, and are taken from the Valuation Rolls (vide footnotes to pages xix and xxxii of Report).

† Estimated on Valuation of 1855 and returns made to Board of Supervision.

‡ This amount is compiled from House of Commons return dated 31st March 1874; the Railway Valuation in Counties, estimated at £1,000,000 has been included to make it correspond with the Valuations of the other years.

ABSTRACTS OF RETURNS

OF

RECEIPT AND EXPENDITURE

FOR THE

YEAR 1892-93.

MEMORANDUM.

THIS is the Thirteenth Annual Return under the Local Taxation Returns (Scotland) Act, 1881.

It contains abstracts of the receipt and expenditure of the various Local Authorities of Scotland for the year 1892–93. The School Board Accounts embodied in this Memorandum have been taken from the Twenty-first Report of the Accountant to the Scotch Education Department, being that for the year 1892-93. The Return of receipts and expenditure in burghs under the Roads and Bridges Act (hitherto separately shown) has been amalgamated with the general burgh Returns; and a new Return (No. 7, page 113) has been prepared showing in a manner more complete than has hitherto been attempted the incidence of rates in all the more important local administrative areas.

The amount shown in the present Return as having been received by the Local Authorities of Scotland during the year was 7,550,124*l.*; of which, 3,779,525*l.* was obtained by means of rates; 1,111,275*l.* is attributable to tolls, dues, duties, fees, fines, and rents of corporate property; 1,356,619*l.* was received from grants in aid of local taxation; and 1,302,705*l.* was contributed from various other sources.

The total expenditure of the Local Authorities during the year was 8,119,831*l.*, which shows an increase of 1,337,819*l.* on that of the previous year.

The amount of loans outstanding at the beginning of the year was 27,571,345*l.*; there was borrowed during the year, on security of rates, dues, or property, 2,257,726*l.*; and 1,533,274*l.* was expended in repayment of money borrowed. The amount of debt has, therefore, been increased by 724,452*l.* The interest paid during the year amounted to about 1,028,459*l.* Including the amounts borrowed and repaid during the year, the total receipts were 9,807,850*l.*, and the total expenditure was 9,653,105*l.*

The amount of revenue and expenditure for each of the thirteen years since the Act was passed, and the average of the thirteen years, are shown in the following Table :—

TABLES

SHOWING

THE RATE PER £. OF ASSESSMENT

FALLING ON OWNERS AND OCCUPIERS

IN EACH

RATING AREA,—PARISH, BURGH, AND COUNTY, IN SCOTLAND,

IN THE YEAR 1892-93.

NOTE.—Table (a), pp. 114-169. By running the eye horizontally across the page the amount per £ of the parochial, burghal and county rates respectively levied in each parish in Scotland, and, where a parish is partly in the county area and partly in a burgh or police burgh, the amount per £. in each part can be ascertained. The rates have not been totalled because, parish rates being levied in a net rateable value, while county and burgh rates are as a rule levied on the gross value, the result of totalling would to that extent be misleading.

Table (b) pp. 170-2.—The rates shown in this Table are incorporated in the column for "Total County Rates" in Table (a).

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs. Burghs not so marked are Police Burghs.

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. In such cases the average rate has been obtained by dividing the amount of assessment produced by the assessable rental. Parishes in which there is a classification of occupants under Section 36 of the Poor Law Act are denoted by the letter C. In these parishes the rate upon owners is taken as the average rate upon occupiers. Parishes in which assessment is levied according to "established usage" are denoted by the letters E.U. The populations of burghs apply to the police area.

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. In such cases the average rate has been obtained by dividing the amount of assessment produced by the assessable rental. Parishes in which there is a classification of occupants under Section 36 of the Poor Law Act are denoted by the letter C. In these parishes the rate upon owners is taken as the average rate upon occupiers. Parishes in which assessment is levied according to "established usage" are denoted by the letters E.U. The populations of burghs apply to the police area.

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. In such cases the average rate has been obtained by dividing the amount of assessment produced by the assessable rental. Parishes in which there is a classification of occupants under Section 36 of the Poor Law Act are denoted by the letter C. In these parishes the rate upon owners is taken as the average rate upon occupiers. Parishes in which assessment is levied according to "established usage" are denoted by the letters E.U. The populations of burghs apply to the police area.

† This parish is wholly within the area of the Royal Burgh of Cullen; but the Police Burgh area contains a population of 2,100 only, the remainder of the parish, although included here as burghal, is actually within the landward portion of the County for rating purposes.

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. In such cases the average rate has been obtained by dividing the amount of assessment produced by the assessable rental. Parishes in which there is a classification of occupants under Section 36 of the Poor Law Act are denoted by the letter C. In these parishes the rate upon owners is taken as the average rate upon occupiers. Parishes in which assessment is levied according to "established usage" are denoted by the letters E.U. The populations of burghs apply to the police area.

† This parish is wholly within the Royal Burgh of Pittenweem; but the Police Burgh area contains a population of 1,962 only, the remainder of the parish, although included here as burghal, is actually within the landward portion of the county for rating purposes.

The letters R & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. In such cases the average rate has been obtained by dividing the amount of assessment produced by the assessable rental. Parishes in which there is a classification of occupants under Section 36 of the Poor law Act are denoted by the letter C. In these parishes the rate upon owners is taken as the average rate upon occupiers. Parishes in which assessment is levied according to "established usage" are denoted by the letters E.U. The population of burghs apply to the police area.

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. In such cases the average rate has been obtained by dividing the amount of assessment produced by the assessable rental. Parishes in which there is a classification of occupants under Section 36 of the Poor Law Act are denoted by the letter C. In these parishes the rate upon owners is taken as the average rate upon occupiers. Parishes in which assessment is levied according to "established usage" are denoted by the letters E.U. The populations of burghs apply to the police area.

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. In such cases the average rate has been obtained by dividing the amount of assessment produced by the assessable rental. Parishes in which there is a classification of occupants under Section 36 of the Poor Law Act are denoted by the letter C. In these parishes the rate upon owners is taken as the average rate upon occupiers. Parishes in which assessment is levied according to "established usage" are denoted by the letters E.U. The populations of burghs apply to the police area.

The letters R. & P. denote Royal and Parliamentary Burghs.

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. In such cases the average rate has been obtained by dividing the amount of assessment produced by the assessable rental. Parishes in which there is a classification of occupants under Section 36 of the Poor Law Act are denoted by the letter C. In these parishes the rate upon owners is taken as the average rate upon occupiers. Parishes in which assessment is levied according to "established usage" are denoted by the letters E.U. The populations of burghs apply to the police area.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT (SCOTLAND).

COUNTY RATES.

NOTE.

UNDER the LOCAL GOVERNMENT (SCOTLAND) ACT, 1889, the COUNTY COUNCILS thereby constituted were empowered to raise the following assessments formerly raised by Commissioners of Supply, Road Trustees, and Parochial Boards :—

NAME OF ASSESSMENT.	By whom formerly Levied.	Statutory Authority under which Levied.	INCIDENCE.
(1.) County General	Commissioners of Supply	31 & 32 Vict. c. 82, s. 3	Prior to the commencement of the Local Government Act, these assessments were wholly payable by owners. By section 27 (4) of that Act, the Sheriff of each county was required to ascertain the "average" assessment levied under each of these heads during the 10 years ending Whit Sunday 1889 (debt being excluded), and to the extent of the average so ascertained the rates still fall wholly on owners; but any increment over the average is borne equally by owners and occupiers. Debt existing at the passing of the Act, and secured by any of these assessments, is to be paid off by a rate levied wholly on owners.
(2.) Police	ditto	20 & 21 Vict. c. 72, ss. 29–31
(3.) Sheriff Court Houses	ditto	23 & 24 Vict. c. 79, ss. 15–19 47 & 48 Vict. c. 42
(4.) Registration of Voters	ditto	24 & 25 Vict. c. 83, s. 41
(5.) Militia	ditto	17 & 18 Vict. c. 106, s. 37 40 & 41 Vict. c. 53, s. 63
(6.) Lunatic Asylums (upkeep of buildings, &c.)	ditto	20 & 21 Vict. c. 71, s. 54
(7.) Valuation	ditto	17 & 18 Vict. c. 91, s. 18	Payable by owners and occupiers equally where there is a special rate, but in many counties the expenses of the Valuation Roll are met out of the County General Assessment. No change in incidence made by Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889.
(8.) Contagious Diseases (Animals)	ditto	41 & 42 Vict. c. 74 s. 70	Payable by owners and occupiers equally. No change in incidence made by Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889. The Public Health Assessment (unlike all the other county assessments which are levied on the gross valuation ascertained under the Lands Valuation (Scotland) Acts) is levied on the "annual value," or net rental, as defined in Section 37 of the Poor Law Act of 1845.
(9.) Public Health (including Special Water and Drainage Assessments)	Parochial Boards	30 & 31 Vict. c. 101, ss. 93 and 94 54 & 55 Vict. c. 52, s. 4
(10.) (a) Roads and Bridges (Management, Maintenance, and Construction)	Road Trustees	41 & 42 Vict. c. 51, s. 52 52 & 53 Vict. c. 50, s. 16 (2) (c) 55 & 56 Vict. c. 12
(b) Roads (Debt)	ditto	41 & 42 Vict. c. 51, ss. 58 and 74 52 & 53 Vict. c. 50, s. 16 (2) (d)	Payable wholly by owners as regards debt incurred before the commencement of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, and by owners and occupiers equally as regards debt incurred subsequently.

The Local Government Act further provided, see Section 27, that the rate necessary in respect of any branch or branches of expenditure for which no provision was made under an Act of Parliament in force at the passing of the Act should be imposed as a "General Purposes Rate," falling equally on owners and occupiers.

The following Tables furnish the materials for a comparison between the rates levied under the above heads in 1893–94, and the corresponding rates levied by the old county authorities in 1889–90. For convenience in making the comparison, all assessments have been reduced to the decimal form. The particulars for each county are shown in three horizontal lines; the first (in italics) giving the "average" rates determined by the sheriff under Section 27 (4) of the Local Government Act; the second (in ordinary type) giving the rates levied in 1889–90; and the third line (in heavy type) showing the rates imposed in 1893–94. The assessments for Militia purposes and Sheriff Court buildings, as they affect only a few counties, and are unimportant in amount, have been thrown into a single column headed "other rates." In cases where the assessments are levied according to parishes or districts (e.g. for roads and public health), and where accordingly the assessment varies in different parts of the county, the Return shows the corresponding average rate over the whole county. For various reasons there was difficulty in obtaining full information from all the counties with regard to the Public Health Assessments imposed in the years selected for comparison, and in the case of that assessment, therefore, the Return shows the actual sums raised by means of the assessment in the years 1889–90 and 1892–93, as appearing in Returns furnished to the Board of Supervision, together with an average rate arrived at by dividing such amounts by the gross county rental (inclusive of the rental of Police Burghs). It is considered that this gives a sufficiently true result for the purpose of the Return. The amount of the grants paid by Government in aid of local rates is also shown with the amount per £. of gross county valuation corresponding thereto. It should be noted in explanation of the relatively higher amount per £. corresponding to grants in certain counties, viz., Argyll, Caithness, Inverness, Ross and Cromarty, Sutherland, Orkney, and Zetland, that these counties alone share in the Highlands Grant under Section 22 (1) of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889.

It is further to be observed that the Government Grants have, as shown in the Return, been largely increased since the commencement of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, and that the increase in county rates has therefore not been commensurate with the increase in county expenditure. The grants are now payable out of the Local Taxation (Scotland) Account.

NOTE.—In classifying this return:—Bequests in English money have been added together by taking the capital value as stated by the Inspector of Poor, and bequests in Scots money have been dealt with in a similar manner. In many cases, however, the amount stated by the Inspector is the original amount bequeathed, and does not represent the present value of the investment.

A Merk Scots = 1s. $1\frac{1}{12}$d. sterling.

Where the capital value of land was not stated in the return, the acreage has been given, and, where neither value nor acreage was shown, the revenue derived has been classed under the two heads of 'Money' and 'Kind.'

Where the capital value of house property was not stated the rentals were added together, and where it was not possible to include a bequest under any of the foregoing heads it has been shown under the heading 'Miscellaneous.'

Note.—In some parishes the landward portion embraces more than one school district. In such cases the average rate has been obtained by dividing the amount of assessment produced by the assessable rental. Parishes in which there is a classification of occupants under Section 36 of the Poor Law Act are denoted by the letter C. In these parishes the rate upon owners is taken as the average rate upon occupiers. Parishes in which assessment is levied according to "established usage" are denoted by the letters E.U.

THE Local Government Board have communicated with the Boards of Guardians with regard to the following cases included in this Return. In the following Statement the effect of the Replies received is given :—

1. A woman unknown, "LIZZIE." Aged about 45 years.

Verdict.—Pneumonia, accelerated by exposure and want of proper food.

The guardians of the Whitechapel Union state that the relieving officer has reported to the effect that he had no knowledge of the deceased, that no application for relief was made to him by or on behalf of the deceased, and that in no form did the destitution of the deceased prior to her death come within his knowledge. They add that it appears to have been given in evidence at the inquest that the deceased told one of the witnesses that she was very ill, but refused to go to the infirmary.

2. ELIZA FROST, no occupation, late of Flower and Dean-street. Aged 52 years.

Verdict.—Heart disease, bronchitis, accelerated by alcoholism and want of food.

The Board learn from the guardians of the Whitechapel Union that the medical superintendent of the infirmary states, in his report of the facts of the inquest in this case, that the deceased "was brought from a lodging-house in a dying condition," and that in accordance with his (the medical superintendent's) practice in such cases, he interrogated the deceased, and was satisfied that no application for relief had been previously made to the relieving officer.

3. JULIA MCCARTHY, wife of a waterside labourer, of 14, Brunswick-place, Ratcliff. Aged 68 years.

Verdict.—Heart disease and bronchitis, accelerated by want of sufficient food and nursing.

The guardians of the Stepney Union forwarded to the Board a report made by the relieving officer in regard to the application for relief made in this case in December 1891. The relieving officer stated that on the 18th December Patrick McCarthy, the husband of the woman Julia McCarthy, applied for medical attendance for his wife. An order was issued to the medical officer, who who visited the woman in due course when he left the dispensary. The relieving officer also visited the woman the same day, and taking into consideration that she was blind as well as sick, and that her husband was a casual labourer and was for the day unemployed, notwithstanding that no application for relief other than medical had been made, he suggested that she should enter the sick asylum, which she declined to do. The medical officer made no recommendation to him for relief to be given, neither did the husband make any further application. When he made a visit to the home four days later he found the man and woman partaking of a sufficient meal together, and the man stated he was in work. The guardians inform the Board that when the application referred to in the relieving officer's report was made in December 1891, they made an order for the medical officer to attend to the case for two weeks, and they point out that a period of 15 months elapsed between the time when that order was granted and the date of the poor woman's death, the 26th of March 1893; and that during the intervening period no further application was made either by the woman or her husband for relief of any sort.

4. WILLIAM MCCARTHY. No home. Aged 43 years.

Verdict.—Chronic phthisis, accelerated by exposure and want of food.

The guardians of the Whitechapel Union have forwarded the following extract from the report of the medical superintendent of the infirmary in reference to this case :—"He was admitted in a destitute and collapsed condition, and had been wandering about the streets for several nights. He stated that he had been unable to obtain food or work, but had not applied for relief, although advised to do so."

5. WILLIAM HOWE, 63, Ely-terrace. Aged eight months.

Verdict.—Exhaustion, from want of proper nourishment, supervening on gastro-intestinal catarrh.

The guardians of the Hamlet of Mile End Old Town state that no application for relief was made in this case, and that it was not in any way brought under their notice. They add that the relieving officer of the district saw the mother of the child on the 20th of December 1894, and recognised her as the person who is living in the same house as one of the regular recipients of out-relief; and when he mentioned the matter to her, she said "my lodger collected sufficient money from the neighbours to cover the expenses of the funeral."

6. JAMES MCKENZIE. No home. Aged 21 years.

Verdict.—Syncope, from congestion of lungs and abscess of lungs, accelerated by privation.

The guardians of the Stepney Union have forwarded the following statement made by their relieving officer in regard to this case. On the morning of the 5th June 1893 a messenger came to the relief office and stated that a man was ill at the Free Shelter, Medland Hall. A visit was made immediately by the relieving officer, and the medical officer was in attendance very shortly after. The man upon examination was found to be dead. The mother of deceased came and claimed the body and buried it at her own cost. No previous application had been made to the relieving officer.

7. SAMUEL E. HOBBS, dock labourer, 20, Love-lane, Ratcliffe. Aged 63 years.

Verdict.—Pneumonia, accelerated by want of sufficient food.

The guardians of the Stepney Union forwarded to the Board a report made by the relieving officer upon this case, in which he states that on the 17th August, about 10 a.m., an application was made to him by the man's wife for medical attendance upon her husband. An order was at once issued for the medical officer to visit, and the patient was visited and prescribed for about noon. On the 19th the man was again visited. He was dressed and lying upon the bed. The relieving officer had some conversation with him, but discovered nothing to indicate any immediate danger. The relieving officer thought that the man would have a better chance of recovery as an inmate of the sick asylum, and he suggested to him that if the medical officer would recommend that course he would order his removal. The patient approved of the suggestion, and upon receipt of the medical officer's recommendation he was conveyed to the sick asylum the same afternoon. The wife made no application for out-relief; when questioned as to how her husband was supported, she answered, "I can get sufficient for him."

8. Abraham Fouchmacher, 94, Old Montague-street. Aged 33 years.

Verdict.—Syncope, from debility caused by privation.

The guardians of the Whitechapel Union state that neither the medical officers nor relieving officers appear to have been called at the inquest on this case; and neither in this nor in the previous cases (Eliza Frost and William McCarthy) have the relieving officers any record of any application for relief, or of the circumstances of the deceased persons having been brought under their notice.

10. William T. Pocock, labourer, 8, Field-view, London Fields. Aged 56 years.

Verdict.—Exhaustion from bronchitis, accelerated by want of proper food.

The guardians of the Hackney Union state that this man made no application for relief, and is unknown to the relieving officers.

11. Rosina Gotch, 151, Clarence-road, Hackney. Aged 34 years.

Verdict.—Syncope from cold and privation. (Note.—The deceased was a drunkard.)

The guardians of the Hackney Union have forwarded a report from the relieving officer, who states that the only application made to him in this case was for a burial order, which was granted. This application was made by Charles Meecham, of 151, Clarence-road, who stated that the deceased had lived with him for 14 years as his wife, and that he was the father of her two children, aged 11 and 7 years.

12. John Skillin, 12, Princes-street, Shoreditch. Aged 63 years.

Verdict.—Heart disease and congestion of the lungs, accelerated by want of food.

The guardians of the Whitechapel Union have forwarded the following report made by Dr. Hume, medical officer, on this case: "On March 28th, I received an order from the relieving officer to attend the patient. On arriving there, I found him in an exhausted and collapsed condition, too ill to be removed to the infirmary. I had him put to bed and prescribed both medicine and nourishment for him. He had all the necessaries his case required during his illness. From the emaciated condition of the body and the patient's statement that he had had very little food for a week, and for four or five days before he was taken ill he had not tasted food at all, I gave it at the inquest as my opinion that his death was accelerated by want of food. Previous to his last illness no application had been made either by himself or any of his friends for parish relief."

13. John S. Lock, 18, Berger-road, Homerton. Aged six years.

Verdict.—General tuberculosis, accelerated by the wilful negligence of Joseph Haynes, 18, Berger-road, a bricklayer's labourer, and of Elizabeth Haynes, his wife, who did feloniously kill the said John Samuel Lock.

The guardians of the Hackney Union have forwarded a report from the relieving officer stating that this child was medically attended in April 1893 as a patient, brought to the dispensary by his aunt Elizabeth Haynes, the medical officer reporting the case as one of "phthisis." After a fortnight's medical attention and necessaries, the medical officer considered the child was not having proper nursing care at home, on account of dirt and general neglect, and ordered its removal to the infirmary, where it continued for six weeks, when it died. The circumstances connected with the case justified notice being given to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, who prosecuted the uncle and aunt, Joseph and Elizabeth Haynes, for neglect, &c., they having undertaken the care of the child. The aunt, Elizabeth Haynes, was convicted, and sentenced to eight months' imprisonment.

14. Mary Barker, machinist, Dufferin-street, St. Luke's. Aged 43 years.

Verdict.—Syncope, probably from insufficient food.

The guardians of the Holborn Union state that this woman was examined as to the state of her mind in January 1893, before a justice, who discharged her as sane; that the relieving officer visited the woman's lodging a few days after her discharge from the workhouse, and found that she was out at work as a machinist, and that no application had been made to the relieving officer for help, nor did it appear to be a case requiring relief.

15. ABRAHAM FRANKS, 73. Hanbury-street (son of Barnard Franks, a boot finisher). Aged seven months.

Verdict.—Want of proper nourishment and neglect, but the jury say such neglect does not amount to criminal neglect.

The guardians of the Whitechapel Union state that it does not appear that this case came in any form under the notice of the relieving officer.

16. JAMES RANDALL, 40, Peartree-street, St. Luke's. Aged six months.

Verdict.—Double pneumonia, accelerated by gross neglect on the part of the mother. (Note.—Evidence of exposure and general privation).

The guardians of the Holborn Union state that the relieving officer reports that the only application made to him in this case was for the burial of the child after the inquest.

17. ELIZABETH BURGOYNE, 30, Easton-street, Clerkenwell. Aged 61 years.

Verdict.—Exhaustion and inanition from want of medical care and attention and proper nourishment, and from exposure to cold and self-neglect.

The guardians of the Holborn Union state that an application on behalf of Elizabeth Burgoyne, was made to the relieving officer on the 6th January 1893, between 9 and 10 a.m., when the applicant was given a medical order. That the medical officer of the district visited the case shortly after 10 a.m., accompanied by the relieving officer, but on their arrival at the house the woman was found dead, and that no application by, or on behalf of the woman was made either before or after that referred to.

18. GEORGE BEAUMONT, costermonger, 7, Bishops-court, Clerkenwell. Aged 52 years.

Verdict.—Congestion of lungs and bronchitis, accelerated by want of proper medical care and attention, and from self-neglect.

The relieving officer of the Holborn Union states that the only application made to him in this case was for burial after the inquest.

19. ALFRED G. TURLEY, 41, Cottenham-road. Aged three months.

Verdict.—Malnutrition arising from insufficient or injurious feeding; and that the mother is deserving of censure.

The guardians of the parish of St. Mary, Islington, state that on 2nd February 1893, an application was made to the relieving officer for a medical order for Sarah Turley, the mother of this child, and for a son aged 14 years. The order was given and the medical officer attended them for about 10 days; he then ceased to visit and recorded in his book, that the mother who had suffered from catarrh was relieved, and the boy who had suffered from catarrh was cured. The relieving officer visited on 2nd February, and found the man was at work and there was no evidence of insufficient food, neither was application made for any. The medical officer states that there was an inquest on one or two other children of the same family, from the same cause as Alfred, and that the mother was an habitual drunkard.

20. JOHN SANER, chemist, 37, Elgin-terrace. Aged 42 years.

Verdict.—Syncope and exhaustion when suffering from rheumatic gout and congestion of lungs, and from absence of proper nourishment and medical advice, from self-neglect.

The relief committee of the guardians of the parish of Paddington state that no application was made, either to them or to the relieving officer, by the late John Saner, nor had the case been brought under the notice of the guardians or their officers in any other way.

21. ELLEN M. COX, daughter of a compositor, 140, St. John-street, Clerkenwell. Aged four months.

Verdict.—Inanition from want of sufficient and proper food, and when suffering from diarrhœa accelerated by neglect on the part of the parents; and that the mother is deserving of censure.

The relieving officer of the Holborn Union states that no application was made to him, but the case came under his notice and he saw the father who declined any assistance, being in constant work, and stated that the child was under medical treatment.

22. Ernest Griffin, barman, no known address. Aged 52 years.

Verdict.—Collapse and exhaustion from pneumonia and tuberculosis, when suffering from want and exposure due to self-neglect.

The managers of the Central London Sick Asylum District have forwarded a report from the medical officer of the asylum, stating that this man was brought to the infirmary from the Hunter-street Police Station. The order admitting him certified wound of head, disease of lungs, extreme debility, and bed sores. It was stated on admission that he had been ill a fortnight with diarrhœa, and that he had a wound of the scalp caused by a fall. He had pneumonia of both lungs. The medical officer was not able to supply any further information.

23. Alfred Buckland, no known address or occupation. Aged 60 years.

Verdict.—Exhaustion and collapse from destitution, and want of proper nourishment and shelter from self-neglect.

The guardians of the parish of St. Pancras state that the deceased was found by the police on the 23rd of September 1893, wandering in Parliament-hill Fields, and was brought to the workhouse of the parish, where he died on the same day. That he was unconscious on admission, and was in a most filthy, neglected, exposed, and starved condition. They add that all the relieving officers of the parish have searched their books for a period of five years, and have not found any record of the deceased having applied for relief.

25. James Ong, army pensioner, 7, Bedford-place, Fulham. Aged 65 years.

Verdict.—Syncope. Fatty degeneration of heart, accelerated by want.

The guardians of the Fulham Union state that, careful search having been made in the registers of the workhouse and infirmary since the month of July 1891, it is found that no person named Ong has been admitted to either establishment. They add that the man Ong was not known to either of the relieving officers in the Union, but that subsequent to his death, his widow was granted an allowance of out-door relief on two occasions, and that there do not appear to have been any prior or subsequent applications by this family.

26. Norah Hickey, daughter of a tailor, 11, Lockton-street. Aged one year.

Verdict.—Exhaustion. Broncho-pneumonia, accelerated by want and cold.

The guardians of the parish of St. Mary Abbotts, Kensington, state that the parents of this child have from time to time applied for, and received relief between the 27th June 1892, and the 13th February 1893, when the mother of the child and a brother were admitted to the infirmary; the child Norah was in the infirmary until the 13th January 1893, when the parents insisted upon taking her out against the wish of the medical officer. The child Norah was buried at the expense of the parish.

27. Albert V. Weston, 6, Beethoven-street, Queen's-park, Kensal Town. Aged two months.

Verdict.—Starvation. Insufficient and improper food. Manslaughter against Ellen Carter.

The guardians of the parish of Chelsea, of which Kensal Town is a detached part, state that the relieving officer of the district reports that he can find no entry of the name of Albert V. Weston, but that the following entry appears in the books under date 15th December 1892:—"Carter, Robert, 46, 6, Beethoven-street, sign writer, out of work; wife, Ellen, 43, earns 12*s.*; Alfred, one month, medical order for child." The medical officer for the district reports that he has no record of any child named Weston having been seen by him in February 1893, but that on 15th December 1892 a child named Alfred Carter was seen by him at his surgery, and was entered as suffering from atrophy; that the child was brought to him again on 17th December, but that from that date he saw no more of him, nor was any application made on his behalf; that on 12th February 1893, he was asked to go and see without an order a child at 6, Beethoven-street, whom on his arrival he found to be dead; that he then learned that it was the child he had seen two months before, and that the woman had been attending with him at the children's hospital; that it was from there the coroner received information of its death; and that the coroner ordered an inquest and called the medical officer as a witness.

28. Ernest

28. Ernest E. Griggs, 5, Great James-place, Notting-hill. Aged two years.

Verdict.—Syncope. Inanition, improper and insufficient feeding.

The guardians of the parish of St. Mary Abbotts, Kensington, state that no application in respect of this case was made for any form of relief until the mother, who was in service in the parish, applied for an order for its burial, which was granted.

29. Charles Cox, bath chairman, 15, Jameson-street. Aged 61 years.

Verdict.—Syncope. Fatty heart, accelerated by cold and want.

The guardians of the parish of St. Mary Abbotts, Kensington, state that no application whatever was made in this case to the guardians or their officers.

The guardians of the parish of St. Mary Abbotts, Kensington, state that no application whatever was made in this case to the guardians or their officers.

31. Harold W. Packer, 37, Harries-street, Queen's-park. Aged six months.

Verdict.—Exhaustion. Pneumonia, accelerated by want of proper nourishment.

The guardians of the parish of Chelsea, state that the relieving officer can find no entry as to this case, and the medical officer reports that he has no record respecting the child, but finds on inquiry at the house that he was attended by a dispensary doctor from the Harrow-road.

32. Frederick W. Redman, 21, Wornington-road. Aged 10 weeks.

35. Arthur Groves, beer boy in docks, 13, Oldfield-road. Aged 19 years.

Verdict.—Chronic bronchitis and emphysema, accelerated by want of sufficient and proper nourishment, and exposure to recent inclement weather.

The guardians of the St. Olave's Union have forwarded a report from the relieving officer stating that application was made to him for a medical order for Arthur Groves on the day he died; this was at once given, and upon his necessitous condition becoming known to him, the relieving officer immediately supplied nourishment, also materials for firing, &c.

36. Frederick Edmonds, 50, James-street, Deptford. Aged three years.

Verdict.—Exhaustion following tuberculosis and bronchitis, from want of sufficient food and clothing. Manslaughter against E. Jane French.

The guardians of the Greenwich Union state that no application was made to them or their officers in this case.

The guardians of the St. Olave's Union state that no application was made to the relieving officer, nor was the case in any way brought under his notice.

38. William F. Dill, jobbing gardener, 12, Warwick-street, Woolwich. Aged 54 ears.

Verdict.—Pneumonia, through cold, exposure, and self-neglect.

The guardians of the Woolwich Union have forwarded a report by the relieving officer on this case. He states that William Dill applied for, and received medical and other relief for his wife in February 1893. That on the 17th of that month, after the death of the wife he visited the man and paid him the relief ordered by the guardians on account of his wife's illness, and informed him that if he required further relief he would have to attend before the Board of Guardians. This the man declined to do, and the relieving officer did not receive any further application from him or on his behalf, and never saw him afterwards.

39. Alfred Williams, address and occupation unknown. Aged 80 years.

Verdict.—Failure of the heart's action, death being accelerated by exposure.

The guardians of the Greenwich Union state that prior to his admission to the infirmary in December 1893, where he was brought by the police, Alfred Williams was entirely unknown to the guardians or their officers, but that further inquiries show that the man had for some years been living as a mendicant about Blackheath without any fixed home, and that he was the recipient of a considerable amount of charity, so that he never had occasion to make any application for poor law relief.

40. William Calf. Aged 53 years.

Verdict.—Deceased died from bronchitis and exposure.

The guardians of the St. Saviour's Union state that they have ascertained from their relieving officer that he has no knowledge of this case. The man appears to have been taken to the workhouse by the police on a stretcher, having been found in the street ill and in a destitute condition, and was admitted without an order. It was stated by the police that the deceased slept at the Salvation Army Shelter in the Blackfriars-road, S.E., the previous night. He died on the 2nd January 1893, the day after his admission.

41. Ellen Lucey, wife of labourer, 1, Robert-street, Pimlico. Aged about 57 years.

Verdict.—Death from inflammation of the lungs, accelerated by starvation and cold.

The guardians of the St. George's Union have forwarded a report by the present relieving officer of the district, in which he states that it appears by the books of his predecessor that the first application in this case was made by the husband of the deceased on the 11th January 1893, and that this was for the burial of his wife.

42. William F. Waltham, oil and colourman. No home. Aged 53 years.

Verdict.—Clot in heart, accelerated by exposure and irregular living. Natural death.

The guardians of the Westminster Union state that this man was brought to the workhouse by the police. He had not previously made any application for relief, either to the guardians or their officers, and his case was entirely unknown.

Verdict.—Syncope from plugging of pulmonary artery, accelerated by want of proper nourishment. Natural death.

The guardians of the St. George's Union state that no application was made to the relieving officer of the union in this case, nor was their attention called to it.

46. GEORGE H. THWAITES, 57, Sardinia-buildings. Aged three weeks.

Verdict.—Exposure and immaturity. Natural death.

The guardians of the united parishes of St. Giles-in-the-Fields, and St. George, Bloomsbury, have forwarded the following report made by the relieving officer in regard to this case. "On the 10th July 1893, Emily Thwaites, aged 21, said to be the wife of a bricklayer's labourer, of 57, Sardinia-buildings, was admitted to the workhouse 'in labour,' and her child George Henry was born the same day. She discharged herself with the child on the 25th July 1893. I have no record of any further application having been made from that date, not even for the burial of the deceased child."

48. MARIA CRANE, widow, 6, Holles-street, Clare Market. Aged about 52 years.

Verdict.—Death from neglect and want of proper nourishment, accelerated by an injury to the head caused by an accidental fall through weakness.

The guardians of the Strand Union state that they learn from the relieving officer that no application had been made to him respecting this case at any time.

49. FREDERICK W. CARTER, 21, Fullwood's Rents, Holborn. Aged seven weeks.

Verdict.—Death from starvation, the child having been neglected by its mother; but there is not sufficient evidence to prove that the neglect was the cause of the starvation.

The relieving officer of the Holborn Union states that no application was made for relief in this case.

50. JENNY WILLIAMS, daughter of an unmarried general servant. Aged two months.

Verdict.—Death from want of proper nourishment.

The guardians of the St. George's Union have forwarded a report from the master of the Buckingham Palace-road Workhouse in reference to this case, stating that this child was born at the workhouse on 9th October 1893, and was discharged with her mother on 7th November, when they were sent by the Ladies' Visiting Association to a Convalescent Home at Eastbourne, where they remained till 6th December. Owing to the mother neglecting to give her child proper attention, the authorities declined to allow them to remain in the home any longer, and on the morning of 6th December they were brought up to London, but owing to some mistake were not met at Victoria (as was intended) by someone connected with the association. The woman then stated her intention of going to her mother, who lived in Battersea Park-road; she appears, however, to have waited about till the evening and to have neglected to suckle the baby. When she eventually did go to her mother's, it was seen that the child was very ill, and the grandmother immediately brought them to the workhouse where they arrived at 7.10 p.m., when the child was evidently dying. The medical officer was immediately sent for and saw the child, but she never rallied and died at 11.30 the same night.
